Open to Public:

George Stinsman – 30 E. Homestead Avenue, Collingswood NJ. He has a rental property located at 505 Chestnut Street. He is having all kinds of sewer problems because of a design flaw in the lines. He says that three owners dump into one section of the line called a “Bell” and then it flows down the main. The problem with this bell is that it is lower than the main so sewage collects until it overflows. The overflow is causing a backup in the lines to the adjacent homeowners. D. Domico, Superintendent of Public Works, said she would look into it and speak with Mr. Stinsman after the meeting.
