Tyranny didn't win the election of 2012.

Liberty lost it.

“Today, there is a handful of people in power ruining America for 330 million of us. They have kept our nation in a state of perpetual war and increasing, unsustainable debt.

This small group has presided over the elimination of our Bill of Rights and the systematic dismantling of the freedoms guaranteed us under our Constitution.

It is THEM we should be fighting, not each other. We the People will never agree on all of the small things, but let’s agree on the big thing: Our leaders have blown it.

If we don’t get control of this ship together and fix it together, we will all go down with it together.”

During his two terms as governor, Gov. Gary Johnson did what people in office rarely do. He kept his word. A Republican, he was re-elected in a state that votes two-to-one Democrat – in a landslide. He vetoed wasteful spending 750 times, cut taxes 14 times, reduced the size of state government through better management, instead of layoffs. He left the people of his state with hundreds of miles of new highways, new schools and bridges, improved state services, a balanced budget and a billion dollar surplus. All without raising taxes a penny. He’s like the majority of Americans: fiscally conservative and socially accepting.
