

Campaigning Ideas

Want to run your own campaign? Got a great idea to get people registering to vote? We've got all the resources you need to get going on our website, so why not come up with your own event or campaign to get the people excited about elections!

Here are a few of our ideas:

1) Host a debate

- Debates are a great way to get people talking and super simple to arrange, just pick a question 'why don't people vote' or 'is voting worth it?' (Obviously we think the answer's yes!) – Invite along some speakers, whether they're local politicians or just your friends and colleagues and spread the word!

2) Organise a Rally

- Gather together your friends and get people excited about voting! Paint some banners, borrow a microphone and hit your campus or town centre, after checking for permission of course. Give a speech, hand out flyers – do anything that'll get people interested and ready to register!

3) Go Canvassing

- All you need to canvass is confidence and a clipboard! Go out and start talking to people, print off some of our flyers and let people know how easy it is to get registered, and how important it is to vote!
