FOLLOW-UP ON “LEGALIZATION OF PHYSICIAN AID IN DYING”
Resolution of Witness Approved by GS26 (2007)
Working Group Report to the Committee of Reference
Compiled by David McCurdy
March 30, 2009

This resolution called on multiple UCC constituencies to “study” the proposed legalization of “physician aid in dying” and “report their views” via JWM to GS27. A subsequent working group has been asked to submit its report to JWM by 4/1/09.

The working group is an outgrowth of a larger group of about 20 persons convened by JWM for a teleconference call on 11/17/08. The working group was to continue the dialogue and possibly draft a study guide addressing the resolution’s recommendation and broader end-of-life concerns. That group met three times in two-hour teleconferences on February 2, 2009; February 23, 2009; and March 16, 2009. (See pp. 4-6 for lists of participants in the initial teleconference and the working group.)

The working group, supported by Barbara Baylor and JWM staff, was privileged to receive and consider a wealth of information and materials in addition to the resolution itself. (See pp. 7-8 for a selected list of these resources.) A 1997 booklet jointly published by the United Church of Christ Chaplains in Health Care (now the United Church of Christ Professional Chaplains and Counselors) and the Council for Health and Human Service Ministries, Making End-of-Life Decisions: United Church of Christ Perspectives, and a 2002 California State Assembly report, Improving Care at Life’s End, seemed particularly useful.

Both the November teleconference and the working group discussions indicated that those involved were unlikely to reach agreement on whether to support or oppose the resolution’s proposal to legalize physician aid in dying. Several members felt that the requisite study and broad consideration needed to discern the mind of the church on this matter had yet to take place. There was a desire that congregations (especially) and associations/conferences receive and use appropriate resources to study the issues in an intentional way.

Both strong proponents and strong opponents of the resolution were in the group. Their vigorous discussions surfaced several prominent themes. Among them:

(1) A strategic line of argument was that a bold statement by the next General Synod regarding end-of-life decisions could help to galvanize the church to discussion and action, as had occurred with the Open and Affirming initiative over 20 years ago. On the other hand, the perceived gravity and public impact of such a statement by a mainline denomination could favor a measured approach.

(2) Some in the group felt strongly that legalization would provide a broader range of choice for those facing life-threatening illness, pain, and/or suffering. Others were very concerned with the impact of the resolution psychologically, physically, and as a matter of policy on the disability community and other vulnerable populations within and beyond the UCC. It was observed that, as Harold Wilke (UCC minister and disability advocate) put it, we are all “temporarily able-bodied” (TAB).

(3) There was some feeling that the intended distinction between “physician aid in dying” and “physician-assisted suicide” or “euthanasia” deserved further clarification, along with the phrase “receive medication from a willing physician.”

Working Group Recommendations to the Committee of Reference

1. Continue and extend the original Resolution’s mandate to study the proposal until a final report is submitted prior to GS28 in 2011.
   a. Premise #1: Dialogue and education are critical to informed consideration of this significant, even momentous resolution.
   b. Premise #2: Faith communities, including the UCC, are not immune to our culture’s death-denying tendency, which results in a common failure to address a wide range of end-of-life issues. This resolution presents the UCC with another opportunity to engage the still neglected, often avoided subjects of how persons live their lives, and what choices and supports they have (or don’t), in the face of life-threatening illness, suffering, disability, and anxiety.

2. Authorize the current working group to develop a study process, design a study guide/sourcebook, and create/distribute additional resource materials for use throughout the church.
   a. Study guide/sourcebook would be developed for distribution in fall 2009 UCC mailing. (Time constraints do not permit the working group to develop a study guide prior to April 1 or before GS27. The group proposes to continue working on it until completion.)
   b. Study guide would, among other things, include sections with well crafted arguments for and against legalization of physician aid in dying. It could be offered as a Lenten discussion resource.
   c. An online post-Easter survey of all UCC congregations (addressed to clergy or lay leaders), and of key leaders and/or constituencies in associations and conferences, would gather and evaluate responses to issues raised in the Resolution and study guide. (Provision for churches without connectivity would need to be made.)
d. Subsequently developed resource materials (taking survey results into account) would likely include a significant revision of 1997 edition of Making End-of-Life Decisions: United Church of Christ Perspectives.

3. Provide for dissemination (electronic and/or by postal mail) of study materials—study guide/sourcebook, survey, and additional resources—to associations, conferences, and every congregation.

4. Engage broad participation by other constituencies in the dialogue: UCC Disabilities Ministries, CHHSM, UCC Professional Chaplains and Counselors, UCC Faith Community Nurses and Physicians, UCC seminaries and colleges, the UCC theological journal Prism, Historically Under-represented Groups, UCC Science and Technology Task Force, and perhaps others.

5. In its proposed capacity as a continuing Study Committee, the working group could incorporate the pending Central Atlantic Conference resolution or other actions on physician aid in dying by GS27/the Executive Council into the study process as requested.
