Health Fair integrates HIV prevention and care

By Leonard Conner

On Thursday, September 18, 2008, City of Refuge, UCC in San Francisco held its annual Community Health Fair. This annual event is sponsored by Refuge Ministries' social service non-profit corporation, The Ark of Refuge, Inc., and was coordinated this year by Director of Program Services, Ms. Rachel Kelley. It has historically been, and continues to be, the largest Community Health Fair in San Francisco. This year's fair was the largest to date, with 24 exhibitors/presenters, inclusive of the Ark of Refuge, and also included food and entertainment.

From its inception, the purpose of Refuge Ministries' Health Fair has been to address health concerns in an encompassing, holistic manner—of which HIV care/information/education/prevention are a part. We have sought to eliminate the societal stigma often ascribed to HIV/AIDS by not isolating it, but rather incorporating it into a total health information forum. The presenters at this year's Fair were primarily Community Based Organizations (CBOs) in San Francisco, and addressed just about every health concern imaginable. In addition to HIV/AIDS, the health concerns addressed included: substance abuse/alcoholism, mental health, hypertension, diabetes, coronary artery disease, stress reduction/massage/meditation, breast and prostate cancer, homelessness, and economic development/job training—as well as rapid HIV testing and STD screenings. The Health Fair targets traditionally underserved populations that we, and our sister CBO's, serve in San Francisco. The attendees include many of our existing clients, as well as underserved persons from the SOMA (South of Market Area) of San Francisco where we are located, who are just learning of the many services available to them.

In addition to the many community agencies present this year, we were honored by some special guests. One of our contract managers from the San Francisco Dept. of Public Health was in attendance—and, two staff members from the office of California State Assemblyman Mark Leno attended and surprised us with a proclamation from the Assemblyman's office, honoring the Ark of Refuge for our many years of service to underserved populations.

From the Desk of the Executive Director

On November 6, the Wider Church Ministries Board of Directors adopted a resolution calling for increased HIV prevention throughout the church and community.

The resolution will be submitted for consideration at the 27th General Synod of the United Church of Christ (UCC). It calls for new collaborations with UCAN, working together in deliberate and strategic ways to reduce HIV infection, engaging and strengthening the existing capacities of church and community, including:

- increasing HIV and AIDS competencies;
- creating new partnerships focusing on increased effectiveness and accountability
- initiating new and innovative strategies, particularly with vulnerable groups and higher risk populations.

UCAN, Inc. is already prepared to provide technical assistance to all settings of the church.

The text of the resolution is below and the resolution with a background statement can also be accessed online at www.ucc.org/ucan.

Resolution: Calling for comprehensive HIV prevention in church and community

Whereas:

Our Christian faith calls upon the disciples of Jesus Christ to follow Jesus' teachings and the examples of Jesus' ministry; and,

Jesus reached out with compassion and healing to those who were sick and marginalized, and called people of faith to be ready and alert, for example:

Matthew 14:14.
When he went ashore, he saw a great crowd; and he had compassion for them and cured their sick.

Mark 1:40-42.
A leper came to him begging him, and kneeling he said to him, "If you choose, you can make me clean." Moved with pity, Jesus stretched out his hand and touched him, and said to him, "I do choose. Be made clean!" Immediately the leprosy left him, and he was made clean.

Luke 12:39.
But know this: if the owner of the house had known at what hour the thief was coming, he would not have let his house be broken into.

Matthew 25:1-13.
Keep awake therefore, for you know neither the day nor the hour; and,

There are an estimated 33 million people living with HIV worldwide and that for every 5 new HIV infections there are only 2 people who receive medical treatment (UNAIDS, June 2008), demonstrating that the world is losing the fight against HIV and AIDS. Treatment alone cannot stop the HIV and AIDS pandemic; and,

The United States Center for Disease Control (CDC) released new data revealing that HIV infections in the US are 40% higher than previously thought and reporting estimates that there are more than 1 million persons living with HIV in the U.S. and 20% of them do not know they are HIV positive (August 3, 2008); and,

The global health community, including UNAIDS, the World Health Organization, the U.S. CDC, and the U.S. National Institute for Health, has called for increased best practice, comprehensive HIV prevention efforts, especially with vulnerable groups and high risk populations; and,

The CDC has encouraged

everyone to know their HIV status; and,

The international HIV and AIDS community has recognized the important role of faith communities like the United Church of Christ in HIV prevention and care, and the untapped capacity that exists in such communities for effective response; and,

The Fourteenth General Synod of the United Church of Christ adopted the Resolution on Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) and declared its "compassionate concern and support for all persons with AIDS, their lovers, spouses, families and friends" and the Sixteenth General Synod of the United Church of Christ adopted the pronouncement "Health and Wholeness in the Midst of a Pandemic" and called the United Church of Christ to leadership in response to AIDS.

Therefore let it be resolved: that the Board of Directors of Wider Church Ministries:

Declares its compassionate concern about the growing

Treatment alone cannot stop the HIV
and AIDS
pandemic.

World AIDS Day

Leadership is the theme for World AIDS Day again in 2008, following up on the theme of Leadership from 2007 and the theme of Accountability from World AIDS Day 2006.

This theme calls attention to the gap between the promises of leadership to stop the spread of AIDS, and what has actually been delivered to date.

The theme of leadership is intended to empower everyone, not just governments and organizations but also individuals, to take the lead in the response to this still too often devastating illness.

Last year the World AIDS Campaign invited us all to take the lead to stop AIDS. This year they are telling us that it is time to deliver on our promises of leadership.

This is the 20th anniversary of World AIDS Day, and there is much that needs to be done in order to meet the goals that have been set for stopping the spread of HIV and for universal access to treatment.

Right now, new infections are occurring at 2.7 times the rate of increase of people receiving treatment. People with HIV and AIDS still face stigma and discrimination. In 2007, only 31% of those needing treatment in low to middle income countries received treatment.

New infections in the United States have been more numerous than previously thought, and many people in the US and around the world do not have access to prevention education and methods.

The goal has been set of universal access to prevention programs, as well as care and support for those who are HIV positive, by 2010. This date is coming up fast. Now is indeed the time to deliver on promises and to truly take the lead to stop AIDS. We need to be empowered to create change, and to empower everyone to prevent the transmission of HIV, to fight stigma and discrimination, and to get needed treatment.

“The theme of leadership is intended to empower everyone, not just governments and organizations but also individuals...”

Take the Lead!

Living Positive

Zuziswe says, "I like to talk." Her favorite topic is her own story. She was diagnosed as HIV positive in 1999, then 48 years old. By 2003 she was so ill that she nearly died. She spent three months in hospitals for acute tuberculosis. From there she was admitted as a patient at the Samaritan Care Centre, a hospice in South Africa for the terminally ill, predominately those infected with HIV/AIDS.

The Samaritan Care Centre cares for those who are infected and affected by HIV/AIDS, and also bridges cultural barriers between the black and white communities. HIV/AIDS has no face, no color, and no culture. Therefore, everyone is needed to help find a way forward, a cure, and ways to help one another. This indeed is a ministry of healing and also of reconciliation.

When Zuziswe first became a patient at the Samaritan Care Centre, she was too weak to walk and had a CD4 count of only 15. She immediately began treatment with ARVs. To this day, she takes her medication every morning and every evening at 6 o'clock. Her life now is in a completely different place, so different that most people would not hesitate to call her story a miracle.

While still a patient at the Centre, Zuziswe became strong enough to begin to help out, first with cleaning and laundry tasks, later assisting with patient care. Today she stays with her friend, Patience, in a shack not far from the Centre and has joined the Samaritan staff.

One of her special contributions as a caregiver is her role as an example of how to live positively with HIV.

"If you want to survive, you must wake up early, take your medication, go to the shower, exercise, and stay busy -- and don't stress, or HIV will take you out. Tell HIV 'I'm not your friend!'"

These instructions of hers become especially convincing in conjunction with her high level of energy and her determination to live life to its fullest.

Zuziswe has no tolerance for people who refuse to find out about their HIV status. Testing, she knows, is the first step toward "jumping over the grave." Five years from now, she sees herself still as a caregiver at the Samaritan Centre, "using whatever God gives me."

The Samaritan Care Centre is an ecumenical project of the churches in the Buffalo Flats area of South Africa. Volunteers come from these churches, including those related to Global Ministries partner church, the United Congregational Church of Southern Africa (UCCSA-South Africa Synod). Global Ministries missionary, Reverend Dawn Barnes, is on the Samaritan Care Centre's Management Board.

Partner Highlight- New Riverside Church Global HIV and AIDS Ministry Logo

Riverside Church held a national contest to find the official Riverside Church Global HIV and AIDS Ministry Logo.

The winning design was made official on December 1, 2008.

The Logo: The globe with the candle represents the illumination of the path by which The Riverside AIDS/HIV Global Ministry will reach its destiny in assisting those with the disease. Through art, mankind can be guided toward a more peaceful and productive existence. Peace!

Meet Mr. Mustaf Mikal Nasir as he shares how he came up with the design:

My name is Mustafa Mikal Nasir. I was born in Trinidad. Thirty five years ago, the Brooklyn Museum Art School awarded me a Fine Art Scholarship to study Drawing and Painting. I later studied Graphic Design & Illustration at the Center for Media Art in Manhattan.

As early as four, my mother (a stay-at-home mom) was instrumental in my visualization. On a clear day, viewing different types of clouds, she would encourage me to actualize their shapes. At six, I was introduced to drawing by my father who had a creative streak—apart from his career as a Correction Officer—he made clothing without patterns, built furniture; did masonry. Many of those attributes were transferred to my Graphic Art career.

Now living in Harlem, I utilize my skills to positively facilitate all humanity. I am an accomplished pre-press and graphic designer, art director, and fine artist. My art is a tribute to my mother and to my father.

EAA chooses to focus on HIV and Food at General Assembly

Rome, Italy

At its quadrennial meeting in Rome in mid November, the Ecumenical Advocacy Alliance (EAA) chose to focus on HIV and Food for the next four years.

HIV and AIDS has been a focus since the EAA came into existence in 2000 and that focus will continue. The EAA has created theological and worship resources in the struggle to end AIDS. In 2006 and 2008 it was the coordinating organization for faith participation in the United Nations High Level meeting on AIDS.

EAA has also coordinated ecumenical Pre-Conferences at the last three International AIDS Conferences.

The leadership EAA provides has strengthened the faith voice through its three-pronged approach to advocacy: awareness raising, campaigning and lobbying.

EAA has normally focused on two areas and food was narrowly chosen over climate change as the second focus area. Building on achievements in its HIV work and its work on the previous focus area of global trade, the EAA will work to strengthen advocacy for food justice, which includes the care of creation in food production.

The EAA, located in Geneva, Switzerland, was created as a program of the World Council of Churches. At this meeting they became a formal association (non-profit corporation) under Swiss law. UCAN participates in the EAA through the Health and Wholeness Advocacy Office of Wider Church Ministries. Rev. Mike Schuene-meyer participated in the meetings in Rome together with his colleague Wallace Ryan Kuroiwa, of Justice and Witness Ministries.

President Elect Obama's HIV Plan

What will the Obama presidency bring to HIV and AIDS response? The answer to that question remains to be seen, but in President-Elect Obama's campaign, he expressed support for a stronger HIV and AIDS policy.

Obama supports a U.S. national HIV and AIDS strategy to decrease new HIV infections and improve health outcomes for Americans living with HIV/AIDS. Obama proposes the creation of a National HIV/AIDS Strategy.

Obama's plan would focus on eliminating disparities in the epidemic's impact, particularly in minority communities. He also supports comprehensive sex education, expanding access to HIV testing, increasing federal funding for science-based HIV prevention programs, and federal funding for needle-exchange to prevent the spread of HIV.

On the global level, Obama supported the reauthorization of the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR) and supports an increased commitment to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria.
