

Summary of New Funding

BC's new provincial government has taken first steps to begin implementing universal child care.¹ BC Budget 2018 committed $1 billion over three years² to improve access to quality, affordable child care, complemented by additional federal funding³ of $153 million. Building on its election commitment to the $10aDay Child Care Plan, government's significant actions to date are in three key areas — lower parent fees, more licensed spaces, and higher ECE wages.

ACTION		Budget (rounded)
		BC	Canada
AFFORDABILITY, including lower parent fees
1	Child Care Fee Reduction Initiative: Funding to licensed providers to lower fees for all families in infant/toddler care by up to $350/month and $100/month for children aged 3 to 5. Families of more than 50,000 children benefiting.	$630 million
2	Affordable Child Care Benefit: Income-tested subsidy expanded to include families earning up to $111,000, with those earning $60,000 to $80,000 paying $10/day on average. Maximum benefit of $1,250/month eliminates most fees for families in licensed infant/toddler care earning less than $45,000 annually.
3	Universal Child Care Prototypes: 18 month initiative to fund selected sites across BC to reduce fees to maximum $10/day ($200/month) for all families as a way to test funding models that will inform implementation of universal child care.		$60 million
Total budget for AFFORDABILITY		$630 million	$60 million
