For any yes/no questions you answered "qualified" please explain:

Q16

Please describe your background (education, employment, community and civic activity, labor union affiliation etc.)

I bring 11 years of experience on campaigns, organizing and working inside government and non-profit institutions to my current bid for office. In 2013 I led the Yes! for SeaTac Proposition 1 campaign for a $15 minimum wage that paved the way for communities across the country to raise their wages. In 2015 I led the Honest Elections campaign that established the Democracy Voucher program, that has enabled Seattle municipal candidates to run more people powered campaigns, and voters to have greater involvement in local elections. I've also had the honor to train over 500 women candidates with the National Women's Political Caucus of WA, specifically women of color in the past 3 years.

In 2015 I ran for Seattle City Council District 1. While I did not win that campaign, I took many lessons from that race into this one. I gained the real world legislative experience to inform a future run. With over five years of serving with Council President González, I have gained expertise negotiating policy, and more knowledge of the most pressing issues facing Seattle.

I've also served on the boards of City Club, Working WA, the National Women's Political Caucus, IDF and The WA Bus.

Q17

Please describe your history of involvement (if any), with particular emphasis on the last five years, in local, regional, and/or state politics.

For the past five years, I have served as a Legislative Aide and Chief of Staff to Council President Lorena González. During my time at City Hall, I have led negotiations for Police Accountability legislation, the Surveillance Ordinance in collaboration with ACLU-WA, and the Secure Scheduling Ordinance, providing greater worker protections for employees in restaurants and retail. I worked to establish and stood up the City's Office of Inspector General (OIG) to ensure fairness and integrity in our law enforcement system. I have advanced solutions to our most pressing issues from a place of empathy and in pursuit of justice.

I have also prioritized making and maintaining relationships with local, state and county elected officials and advocates in my pursuit to support legislative advances not just in the City, but across the region.

Q18

Please describe the progress of your campaign and goals. How do you plan to win?

Our campaign had the good fortune of being the first Position 9 campaign to officially qualify for the Democracy Voucher Program. We hit the ground running with active engagement with community, and our campaign continues to meet people where they are. Due to public safety guidelines, I have substituted doorbelling with phone calls directly to voters and have personally made over 1000 direct voter contacts since February. Our team will begin no-contact literature drops to target voters, and we may doorbell if it is advisable to do so from a public health perspective later this summer.

We have a lively social media presence, with weekly community conversations with local advocates, and regular virtual house parties to raise vouchers and funds. I plan to win with a combination of targeted field, mail, and digital advertising, community outreach, labor support, and hard work.

Q19

What issues do you think deserve more attention from media or elected officials? How would you seek to remedy that through your campaign or when elected?

In the past few years it has been easy for the media and elected officials to focus on the divisions in community. Four years of a Trump administration didn't help, but it seems en vogue to highlight contention, demand ideological purity, and adopt a "with us or against us" mentality. I find this to be fundamentally at odds with Democratic values. As the big tent party, it is incumbent on local leadership to find value in these differences, and lead people to a place where we can find agreement amongst disagreements. We are called to be unifiers and leaders, not add fuel to the fire, or choose winners or losers.

Working in a coalition is harder than entrenching. As a City Councilmember I will prioritize bringing back a coalition mentality and look for solutions that have long lasting buy in from a variety of stakeholders.

Q20

How do you plan to involve all residents and engage all communities in the decision making process? How would you work with people who lack trust in our institutions?

One of the biggest mistakes elected officials can make is to assume they know more about the issues that directly affect the community. I have made it part of my people-powered campaign to value and constantly engage with community, and I will continue that in office.

Distrust of City Hall in part lies in the at times nebulous nature of what city officials do and accomplish. Legislation takes time and meaningful constituent engagement, and accomplishments need to be shared publicly to build accountability and trust. It is critical that policymakers are centering those most impacted in their decision making processes. I would use my capacity as a councilmember to create communication channels between constituents and City Hall to provide opportunities for greater civic engagement in the legislative process itself. Democracy does bring tangible results, and I know that it can be translated to the wider community better if the council maintains a line of communication between the people and the Council.

Q21

COVID has increased existing inequities. How will you use your office to support the most vulnerable? How would you promote an equitable recovery and create opportunity for all?

The City diligently supported small businesses during the pandemic. Normalizing these policies, such as making permanent our Safe Streets program, and encouraging economic development in neighborhoods that allows folks to work, play and shop where they live keeps people out of their cars, and builds vibrant communities.

The residential and commercial evictions moratoriums the City put in place, the City's prohibition on collaboration with ICE to protect undocumented people and the City's support of mutual aide programs, are all measures that have greatly helped the most vulnerable in our city. I know we can continue such measures to be long lasting as we have already established the infrastructure for them.

Q22

If elected, how will you use your position to address racial inequality, and advance an anti-racist agenda? How specifically would you support the Black Lives Matter movement?

As a Black woman, I have a personal stake in the advance of anti-racist agendas, which includes economic opportunity, access to healthcare and health outcomes that aren't racially biased, housing policy that defies our history of red lining, and educational opportunities that break the school to prison pipeline. Across the span of my career I have worked on legislation that directly impacts, and hopefully uplifts, the black community: $15/hour, Secure Scheduling, Domestic Workers Bill of Rights, Police Accountability, Seattle Transportation Benefit District, Honest Elections. All of these policies were crafted to improve the everyday experience of Black people as valuable and necessary parts of our community. If elected, I will continue the work I began in my legislative career, centering those most impacted in policy decisions, and bringing their voices to the policymaking table. I have put these principles into practice by amassing a majority BIPOC and first-generation American campaign team.

Q35

Our region is growing quickly. How will you ensure that existing residents and newcomers alike have equitable access to affordable housing, public transit, and neighborhood amenities such as parks and schools? How will you protect current residents, and especially our most vulnerable communities, from displacement caused by this growth? How will you provide for and protect those displaced?

One approach is to invest in 15-minute neighborhoods where people can meet all their needs for living without having to venture far. If the planning and implementation of our housing and development are committed to sustainability, we can uplift the areas that historically have faced gentrification and displacement. We must also work to incentivize the return of BIPOC communities to Seattle should they be interested.

Much like the "right to return" policy we saw with the development of Yesler Terrace, we shouldn't have to choose between the expansion of quality, mixed income affordable housing with opportunities for economic development and another out of reach luxury development.

The tenant protections passed in 2020, and the right to counsel legislation in 2021 are both examples of how the City can provide protections to renters during this continued period of the City's growth.

Q36

How have you worked to combat climate change? How would you use your elected office to ensure your region drastically lowers net carbon emissions by 2030 and achieves carbon neutrality by 2050?

My campaign is energized by a vision of building a better Seattle for tomorrow, particularly because of our housing crisis amid sustained population growth, and the exacerbating impacts of climate change. Working with transit advocates on the renewal of STBD gave me an inside look at the impact of reliable, sustainable transit systems which help mitigate single occupancy rides which contribute to our carbon emissions.

I am also keenly aware of the disproportionate impact of climate change on communities of color. In my 2015 run I was appalled to learn of the heightened rates of asthma in children of color in South Park, the decreased life spans of the community in Rainier Beach and their connection to the deprioritization of the consideration of these impacts during the development of these neighborhoods. We have to ensure that when discussing community development we include community health.

Q37

What specific actions will you take to address the homelessness crisis in King County, both in the short term and long term? How do you plan to implement these solutions?

The solution to homelessness is in the name-- homes. We know that to get people off the streets and out of their cars, they need a roof over their head and supportive services to keep them housed. I am hopeful that the recently launched hotelling program will be a success, but we also need to look to long-term solutions. Seattle can and should set a precedent for the rest of the county by getting serious about funding housing, which will likely require enacting/expanding progressive revenue streams.

We should also maintain and extend the eviction moratorium so long as we are experiencing the economic fallout of the COVID-19 pandemic. We should also extend foreclosure protections and assistance for those who are on the brink of losing their homes.

And there is the matter of accountability for communities that continue to criminalize homelessness and poverty, while refusing to provide assistance. It is simply unacceptable that some cities get to decide to not have shelters as if the homelessness crisis respects municipal borders.

Q38

"Structural racism is not always caused by racist actors – it is caused by institutional arrangements overlaid on historical policies that continue to perpetuate racialized outcomes." - Stephen Menendian How would you use your position to work to dismantle these arrangements including, but not limited to, exclusionary land use policies?

I would promote initiatives that prevent displacement and allow people to age in place, even while our city grows. I would also ensure that there are equal voices at the table representative of the multitude of lived experiences. Seattle's zoning is based in racist redlining practices, and we must work to reverse the impacts of these policies. We see continued stratification between renters and homeowners, between south and north parts of the city. While over 50% of our city is made up of renters, a majority of our land is zoned for single family homes. Historically, property owners and neighborhood groups have had a greater say in policymaking and have been quick to challenge proposed changes, such as upzones or bike lanes. The council must prioritize a balanced representation of resident voices.

Do you support the forced removal of unauthorized homeless encampments ("sweeps") in your district?	Qualified
Would you support the construction of a 10 or more unit permanent supportive housing building on your street?	Yes
Would you support the construction of an affordable housing building on your street?	Yes

Have you made any non-trivial donations to Republican candidates or Republican party organizations since January 2016?	No
Do you support reduction of police budgets in favor of social services?	Yes
Do you support the proposed "Clean Campaigns Act" from 2019?	Yes
Are you supportive of the Law Enforcement Assisted Diversion (LEAD) program?	Yes
(Question removed)
Will you commit to ending the ban on apartments and condos on Seattle's residential land, thereby allowing more housing types, such as triplexes, town homes, and small apartment buildings, to be built across the city?	Yes

Q41

For any yes/no questions you answered "qualified" please explain:

I recognize and agree with CDC guidance that tells us encampment removals during the COVID crisis should be suspended. But I do believe that once the City has been able to develop meaningful, accessible, culturally competent housing with supportive services, we cannot simply continue to default to encampments as our baseline solution to the homelessness crisis.

Q42

What actions would you take to address homelessness? Please consider addressing land use, revenue, regional collaboration, the role of social services, the role of the police and justice system.

As stated in Question 30, the solution to homelessness is in the name-- homes. We know that to get people off the streets and out of their cars, they need a roof over their head and supportive services to keep them housed. I am hopeful that the recently launched hotelling program will be a success, but we also need to look to long-term solutions. Seattle can and should set a precedent for the rest of the county by getting serious about funding housing, which will likely require enacting/expanding progressive revenue streams. We should also maintain and extend the eviction moratorium so long as we are experiencing the economic fallout of the COVID-19 pandemic. We should also extend foreclosure protections and assistance for those who are on the brink of losing their homes.

Q43

Seattleites are divided on how to fund and what to fund within police work and public safety. How would you help bring the community together and adjust the Seattle Police Department (SPD) budget as needed? By approximately what % would you adjust the SPD budget?

I was part of many of the difficult conversations and resulting council actions around police funding, informed by community. I stand by the council's decision to divert millions of dollars from the general fund and SPD budget to reinvest in community based alternatives. The Council also identified approximately $30 million for a participatory budgeting program this summer, which is unprecedented in the City's history.

As a black woman, I deeply understand the call to dismantle the current carceral system, reinvest in community, and right generations of race based violence suffered by my community. As a public servant and policy advisor that has been working on issues surrounding the reform and reimagining of policing since 2016, I felt trapped between the limitations of our continued monitoring by the DOJ, which community called for, and a Collective Bargaining Agreement that patently refused to accept many of the calls for accountability set out in the City's 2017 Police Accountability Ordinance.

Simply put, there are no easy answers. There is no magic number, and the Guild is resistant to following many principles community and the council have agreed upon.

Q44

How will you prioritize transportation infrastructure for biking, pedestrians, transit, commercial vehicles, and cars? Which do you view as most important to prioritize funds for?

Robust and sustainable infrastructure that meet our city's long term needs cannot occur if we compromise on infrastructure funding. Flexibility and creativity about continuous funding sources like a progressive revenue would bring is a step in the right direction.

By improving our public transportation, the City will be able to address climate change, think equitably about user access and promote sustainable neighborhoods. One seat rides from our traditionally disenfranchised communities not only speaks to our shared values around equity, but also provides real options for people to see transit use as part of their everyday lives. Having not owned a car in years, I rely on the C Line to keep me moving. All Seattleites should have access to a transit system that is reliable, convenient and accessible regardless of each person's location or physical ability.

As a resident of West Seattle, I personally have a stake in continuing bridge and road maintenance. The bridge being down sequesters a large portion of Seattle. Focusing on fixing this vital roadway will increase mobility and provide a boost to our workforce. We have 5 bridges in the City that are in critical need of maintenance and repair.

Q45

Do you support utilizing Seattle's newly granted authority to implement a 1% flat income tax?

While I am all for finding new revenue, I think it is prudent to include a racial equity assessment in the development of this policy. Flat tax structures disproportionately impact low income families, and an income threshold should be a fundamental part of any policy proposal in this space.
