Q16

Please describe your background (education, employment, community and civic activity, labor union affiliation etc.)

I've lived in Seattle for over two decades and my family and I call North Seattle home.

I am an enrolled member of the Kithehaki Band of the Pawnee Nation and a member of the Upper Athabascan people of Mentasta Lake. As an Indigenous person, the spirit of service has deep roots in my family.

Over the past two decades, I've worked closely with everyone from community leaders and organizers to businesses and political leadership on the state and local level to fight against the root causes of homelessness and address the systemic racism in our criminal justice system.

I'm the Executive Director of Chief Seattle Club, a nonprofit building $100 million dollars of new affordable housing in the city for Urban Indians. On the Seattle Community Police Commission, I've worked hand in hand with neighbors to address the systemic racism in our criminal justice system, and to create progress where complacency has been the rule.

Q17

Please describe your history of involvement (if any), with particular emphasis on the last five years, in local, regional, and/or state politics.

As the Executive Director of Chief Seattle Club, I've been enmeshed in our housing and homelessness crisis. That crisis has grown consistently and sharply over the last few years. We have over 12,000 homeless in the Puget Sound and a rise in victims of domestic violence and abuse. This all consuming work has limited my opportunity beyond usual citizen engagement in our region's political activities.

Q18

Please describe the progress of your campaign and goals. How do you plan to win?

Our campaign was the first Mayoral campaign in the history of our city to qualify for Democracy Vouchers. That means we are not in any way beholden to interest groups or monied interests. Our campaign's slogan is People First. This starts with our strategy for fundraising. We are currently at over $365,000 in vouchers and individual small donations. This leads the pack in fundraising. We currently have a database of over 250 volunteers that have and will continue to actively participate in our campaign efforts. We've schedule 40 virtual town halls in every neighborhood in our city. No other campaign is doing this level of grassroots organizing at this stage of the campaign. That's a good start but it's not enough. We are counting on you. We are counting on you to demand new leadership in Seattle. We have politicians who have been in office and did not step up. It's time for a new generation of leadership. But the truth is, I can only win if groups like yours think bold and don't support the status quo. I am counting on people all over the Puget Sound including the King County Democrats to support and vote for transformational change.

Q19

What issues do you think deserve more attention from media or elected officials? How would you seek to remedy that through your campaign or when elected?

Homelessness is an emergency and a crisis and needs to be treated that way. We are in a ridiculous argument where you're either for the sweeps or you're for people living in the parks. And the problem with that is both of those are completely unacceptable.

Sweeps don't work. We've seen that. It just moves homeless people from one place to another. We spend a lot of time and energy and money moving them. And it just makes their lives worse.

On the other hand, people living in our parks and on our sidewalks and along side highways is not a solution either. It doesn't work for them. And it doesn't work for anyone else.

It has to stop. The reason I'm running for mayor is to break this dynamic.

In my role as Executive Director at Chief Seattle Club, we have built housing and have one of the strongest retention rates keeping people in housing. I am running to bring that level of expertise and results to the city.

Q20

How do you plan to involve all residents and engage all communities in the decision making process? How would you work with people who lack trust in our institutions?

We believe we have started on the right foot by engaging people in every neighborhood with 40 virtual town halls. But, we also know that isn't enough. As an Indigenous homeless advocate, I have been in too many meetings addressing homelessness issues where people of color are the most adversely affected yet I'm the only poc in the room. Not only is this bad politically, it is bad in terms of effective policy.

The City of Seattle has to do a better job including poc in the decision making process. I plan on having mayoral staff and department heads that are diverse AND critical to the decisions made at every level of government. We will do the extra work of reaching out to every community and every neighborhood in the city. One of the reasons we have such a homelessness crisis is the homeless don't have a lobbyist. The neighborhoods don't have a lobbyist. We have to stop the transactional deal-cutting culture that leaves so many people out of the process and puts people's lives at risk. It's clear that too many politicians can't build power and solve our urgent challenges at the same time.

Q21

COVID has increased existing inequities. How will you use your office to support the most vulnerable? How would you promote an equitable recovery and create opportunity for all?

One of the key pieces of my homeless plan is to work regionally with state government, county government, non-profits, businesses and residents to rapidly build the 170,000 homes we would need to stop the pipeline to homelessness over the next decade. That's not just about getting middle class families into homes, this is also about putting people to work. You can't outsource plumbing. It has to be done here. We need to expand community workforce agreements and apprenticeship programs to ensure we are not outsourcing construction workers from other states. We need to do the extra work to train BIPOC communities so those jobs lift up our underserved communities with middle class jobs with good benefits. This also applies to the infrastructure projects being proposed by the Biden Administration, new transportation projects, and all government contracting. We have so much work to do to lift people up after this devastating pandemic and I can't wait to get started.

Q22

If elected, how will you use your position to address racial inequality, and advance an anti-racist agenda? How specifically would you support the Black Lives Matter movement?

First, I would be the first Native American women elected as Mayor of any major city in the United States of America. To elect a qualified woman of color who has shown strong results on the critical issues facing this city would be a strong statement that people of color are welcome in every position and place in America. I can't wait to work with groups like the King County Democrats to ensure diversity, inclusion and equity in every city policy, in every cultural space, and in every part of our democracy.

Second, Black Lives Matter. The most vital way that the next Seattle Mayor can support the Black Lives Matter movement is by doing everything possible to stop the killing of black men by the Seattle Police Department. Starting day one of an Echohawk Administration, we will not keep bad cops with a history of racial violence on our streets. I will take them off the streets. We may not be able to fire officers but we will keep them off patrol duty. I will work with Black-led organizations and resource them to build, own and run their own housing projects. I will also seek out Black-led organizations and give them human services contracts so that they can support the Black community who are experiencing homelessness.

Our region is growing quickly. How will you ensure that existing residents and newcomers alike have equitable access to affordable housing, public transit, and neighborhood amenities such as parks and schools? How will you protect current residents, and especially our most vulnerable communities, from displacement caused by this growth? How will you provide for and protect those displaced?

We need to stop the pipeline to homelessness in the Puget Sound. This means immediately working with state, county government, non-profits and businesses to rapidly increase the number of affordable housing units in the Puget Sound. This urgent crisis needs a large influx of investments in affordable housing. The market has proven over and over again that it will not build affordable housing especially for families. This has caused a fraying of the net that stops families, victims of domestic violence, people with mental health and drug addiction issues from ending up homelessness. This is the reason I'm running. At the same time, our land use codes need to be strengthened to protect existing stock of affordable housing throughout King County including affordable apartments, mobile home parks and affordable homes. I will be a strong advocate for strengthening these regulations as Mayor.

Q36

How have you worked to combat climate change? How would you use your elected office to ensure your region drastically lowers net carbon emissions by 2030 and achieves carbon neutrality by 2050?

Seattle is not currently meeting its Climate Action Plan goals. Our climate emissions have stayed flat or slightly decreased instead of hitting much stronger goals. Our focus needs to be on our transportation and building infrastructure which accounts for over 90% of the emissions in our city.

For example, To achieve the 2030 goal of reducing passenger transportation emissions by 82 percent, Seattle would have needed to reduce emissions from passenger vehicles an average of 7.5 percent each year from 2008 onwards. We have reduced those emissions but only by two percent.

We are going to need to step it up. We need to get our Move Seattle projects, especially around pedestrian and bike lanes, back on track and on budget. We need to do more work creating electric charging stations if we truly want Seattle residents to make the switch to electric vehicles. We need to electrify our city fleet in the next few years. We need to push for federal dollars for Sound Transit to truly be a regional transit network that connects the whole Puget Sound as quickly as possible. Our city needs to do a better job of tracking energy use and incentivizing efficiencies. We need to move all oil burning homes to electric in the next few years. We need to increase zoning incentives to include multi-family housing, ADUs and mixed-use buildings.

I will work with the local Tribes to ask for their guidance, climate justice requires us to remember that we are on Coast Salish lands.

Q37

What specific actions will you take to address the homelessness crisis in King County, both in the short term and long term? How do you plan to implement these solutions?

I have laid out a four part plan to reduce homelessness.

This includes:

1. Emergency Rehousing; Taking the federal dollars that other west coast cities have received to increase the number of people served by the JustCare program. We have roughly 1,000 chronic homeless that could be served by these wraparound services.
 2. On the day after I'm elected, I will begin a capital campaign to build the temporary housing needed to get people out of our parks and into shelter.
 3. Seattle will be a true partner with the State, other regional governments, businesses, labor unions and non-profits to build the affordable housing we need in the Puget Sound region to slow the pipeline of people who end up homeless.
 4. We will increase accountability in City Hall with a quarterly report detailing the number of homeless, the amount of money we are spending and the effectiveness of our work.

Q38

"Structural racism is not always caused by racist actors – it is caused by institutional arrangements overlaid on historical policies that continue to perpetuate racialized outcomes." - Stephen Menendian How would you use your position to work to dismantle these arrangements including, but not limited to, exclusionary land use policies?

I couldn't agree with this statement more. This is a matter of political will. Time and time again, we have heard the right words in terms of increasing affordable housing stock, increasing mixed use development, building density and increasing transit, bike and pedestrian options throughout Seattle. But, we increasingly see an affordability crisis, food deserts, lack of transit and environmental justice issues especially in low-income or neighborhoods of color. As a housing advocate, I have been in too many meetings where I am the only person of color at the table when decisions about housing or land-use or made. That will stop in an Echohawk Administration. The first thing we need to do is put people of color at the center of the decision making table in land use decisions.

Q42

What actions would you take to address homelessness? Please consider addressing land use, revenue, regional collaboration, the role of social services, the role of the police and justice system.

I have laid out a four part plan to reduce homelessness.

This includes:

1. Emergency Rehousing; Taking the federal dollars that other west coast cities have received to increase the number of people served by the JustCare program. We have roughly 1,000 chronic homeless that could be served by these wraparound services.

Q43

Seattleites are divided on how to fund and what to fund within police work and public safety. How would you help bring the community together and adjust the Seattle Police Department (SPD) budget as needed? By approximately what % would you adjust the SPD budget?

Police Reform has failed. We can't look away. We must have the courage to admit that reform so far has failed and we must do better. As Mayor, I will tell you right now that my policy is zero tolerance for bad cops. As mayor I control two things — the police contract, and the hiring a new police chief.

Starting day one of an Echohawk Administration, we will not keep bad cops with a history of racial violence on our streets. I will take them off the streets. We may not be able to fire officers but we will keep them off patrol duty. Furthermore, I would:

1. Strengthen the Community Police Commission's role in advising and oversight. The Community Police Commission were asked to weigh in on the contract, recommended the city not sign the police guild contract and then were ignored which made us out of compliance with the consent decree. That can't happen again. The CPC will have monthly meetings with Chief and Command Staff to review data and investigations on use of force and bias policing. The SPOG President will be required to attend all CPC meetings.
 2. The City needs to go back to neighborhood focused community policing — Seattle has launched a pilot that is sending firefighters for addiction/mental health and non emergency issues. That's a good start. But, we need to model after cities like Eugene who bring in mental health counselors as a first response instead of using our police force as the first option
 3. We need to increase our investments in community based crime solutions. Programs like Choose 180, Creative Justice, and Community Passageways need to be strengthened. In a shooting last week, the neighbors angrily pointed out that all the street lights were out near the Rainier Beach Safeway increasing crime activity in that area. It starts with all departments at the city doing their part.

Q44

How will you prioritize transportation infrastructure for biking, pedestrians, transit, commercial vehicles, and cars? Which do you view as most important to prioritize funds for?

I believe this city needs. Mobility justice is a transportation system that supports resilient, accessible public transit starting with those who need it most, creates good jobs, advances our climate and safety goals, and connects people with options that allow them to thrive. It is making transportation accessible for all and using a People-First lens to include people and communities historically left out of transportation planning. Our transportation options should be as diverse as the populations it serves: the 25% of Washingtonians who do not have a driver's license; and the everyday commuter with essential needs, including people with disabilities who do not drive, Black, Indigenous and People of color (BIPOC), seniors, youth, and people who cannot afford the cost of owning and maintaining a vehicle.

I will build our transportation system back better by investing in a strong and connected multimodal system that is safe and accessible so no one will be stranded without a way to get around. My vision for multimodal means building a robust public transit system that is safe, affordable, accessible; connects sidewalks and bike networks; quickly transitions to clean fuels and electric vehicles; and maintains the roads and bridges we already have.

Do you support utilizing Seattle's newly granted authority to implement a 1% flat income tax?

I would consider a 1% flat income tax, but I want to explore my options and connect with community before I make that decision. I think that we have to think creatively and holistically to find funding sources to solve our homelessness issue as well as fund the other needs of our city.
