Page 4: ALL CANDIDATES: Candidate Background and Free Response

Q16

Please describe your background (education, employment, community and civic activity, labor union affiliation etc.)

For the last 18 years I have gone to work each day serving our students as a teacher and administrator in our public schools. I have had the privilege of working with students and families across the region from Shoreline down to South King County. As a leader and advocate for our kids, I have pushed reform in our education system to ensure students and families furthest from educational justice have the access and opportunities they need to succeed.

I am presently employed as an administrator at Lincoln High School in Seattle.

Prior to my work in administration, I was an active member of the local chapter of the Washington Education Association in Shoreline serving as a building rep, on the executive board, and a term as the Legislative Chair.

Throughout high school and my undergraduate education I was a member of the UFCW, working as a store clerk at Albertsons to help pay my way through college.

I received my undergraduate, masters, and teaching/principal certification from Western Washington University, and completed my doctoral degree in Law and Policy from Northeastern in Boston (Satellite campus in Seattle).

Q17

Please describe your history of involvement (if any), with particular emphasis on the last five years, in local, regional, and/or state politics.

Prior to starting my teaching career I was involved in Democratic politics and advocacy primarily at the state level. While at Western, I served as President and Vice President of the Associated Student Body and was a member of the Washington Student Lobby. As a student advocate, I worked with student leaders across the state in advocating to the state legislature for equitable access to state colleges with tuition control. This also included advocacy at the federal level for increased funding for grants available to students in financial need. Additionally, through my role in student leadership, we led the effort to increase the GOTV effort for college-age voters in Whatcom county as part of the 2000 general election. I was also the lead voice in a number of radio and print interviews about Western's Associated Student Body's creation of a first-in-the-nation scholarship for students who had been denied financial aid for a previous drug conviction

After college I supported Democratic candidates by serving as a campaign manager in the State Senate race in the 31st district. I also completed the year-long training offered by the Institute for a Democratic Future. As my teaching career began, I stayed involved in my local voting district, serving as an alternate delegate to the 2004 National Convention in Boston.

I've worked in a wide range of volunteer roles with the local and state Democratic Party, including serving as an event volunteer, canvassing and phone banking, and assisted the state party staff with events and daily registration activities while attending the Boston Convention.

As my responsibilities shifted to administration, I focused my effort on local advocacy in our schools and school board.

Q18

Please describe the progress of your campaign and goals. How do you plan to win?

Our campaign recently launched at the end of April. While I am new to Seattle politics, I am not new to serving my community. Our team consists of volunteer advisors in the areas of policy, messaging, web and social media, democracy vouchers, and volunteer coordination. We have added professional treasurer support and have signed on with CN4 consulting.

Since we are participating in the Democracy Voucher program, our immediate goal is to hit the qualifying numbers for that program. While we are currently one of the newest campaigns, we believe that our message is the right one for Seattle. I am running for the city council because we need new leadership to revive Seattle with renewed partnerships and accountability.

Q19

What issues do you think deserve more attention from media or elected officials? How would you seek to remedy that through your campaign or when elected?

Inequities found throughout our communities rise to the highest level of importance. Among these, a greater focus on the inequities found among our children and youth need to take a more prominent spot in city governance. As an educator of 18 years, I will bring this lens to the city council as nothing is more important than the safety and well-being of our children. The city must do more to partner with public schools and youth development programs to ensure access and opportunities are awarded to all young people. If we want to address the long-term challenges we have faced, there is no better way to do it than to invest in our youth.

Community behavioral health – mental health and substance use – is another area that is critically important in addressing the challenges of homelessness, un/underemployment, and emergency room use. The city is facing tremendous challenges in this area, and it is critical that we invest into innovative ways to address these challenges, including increased use of community health workers who can offer consistent support to individuals in treatment and recovery as they navigate the health care system.

Q20

How do you plan to involve all residents and engage all communities in the decision making process? How would you work with people who lack trust in our institutions?

We need a return of accountability to our city government. Promoting on-going two-way communication between city offices and residents of Seattle will benefit in returning trust and accountability to the city. An action plan to engage with the community should include multiple entry points for citizens to provide feedback and include an audit of where feedback is coming from. An equity lens should be employed throughout city government. Where we are not seeing ongoing feedback and communication, the city must then take proactive steps to reach out to those individuals and communities to meet them where they are.

Q21

COVID has increased existing inequities. How will you use your office to support the most vulnerable? How would you promote an equitable recovery and create opportunity for all?

Targeted assistance has to exist not only for COVID relief, but also as a matter of practice. The city must identify the greatest areas of inequity and target added resources to help boost the support. Meeting the basic needs of the most vulnerable must always be the initial goal. Added vaccination sites, access to health care professionals, job training, small business relief, child-care, and educational enhancement opportunities all rise to a level of high importance when responding to the rising inequities to COVID-19.

Q22

If elected, how will you use your position to address racial inequality, and advance an anti-racist agenda? How specifically would you support the Black Lives Matter movement?

The BLM movement is incredibly important as we continue to pursue an anti-racist agenda in our community. White supremacy is real, and as a white man of privilege I not only stand in support of BLM, I actively work to educate and understand my own positionality and role in our society. I will continue to advocate for the historical and present need for BLM and how it calls attention to the injustices that exist. I will actively support the community in advancing this understanding in any means possible.

Inequities continue to permeate throughout our communities. Accountability must exist to truly promote an anti-racist agenda. Inaction can be just as harmful as the injustices itself. A racial equity tool must be used to measure against decisions made at the city level to ensure consistent progress towards an anti-racist agenda. Policymakers and decision makers at the city level must also acknowledge the realities of unintended consequences as part of the policymaking process. City officials must be committed to analyzing existing and newly adopted policies to measure the effectiveness of intent versus actual impact. It is not uncommon for policies, even after an equity audit, to not perform in the way it was intended. The Ban the Box law in some communities around the country is a good example of this. While intended to remove barriers for ex-offenders and support job attainment in some communities it may have had an adverse effect on hiring practices. When instances like this occur, policymakers have to go back and review and adjust to ensure the spirit of the change is having the intended impact.

Q34

For any yes/no questions you answered "qualified" please explain:

I am unsure how to quantify "non-trivial" donations, but I do make donations to Democratic candidates and the Democratic party.

Q35

Our region is growing quickly. How will you ensure that existing residents and newcomers alike have equitable access to affordable housing, public transit, and neighborhood amenities such as parks and schools? How will you protect current residents, and especially our most vulnerable communities, from displacement caused by this growth? How will you provide for and protect those displaced?

There is not one right answer to this. Our city is growing fast, and without more long-term urban development planning, we will continue to limit access and opportunities in our city. The simple answer frequently suggested is to rezone the city to allow for more apartment, condo, and duplex type structures to be built. Unregulated, however, this creates opportunities for corporate developers to recreate the city at a huge profit, without necessarily addressing the real problem at hand. This also threatens the historical significance found in many of our neighborhoods, which should be preserved.

As part of the policy process the most important first step is to seek input and the perspective of our impacted communities and where the greatest barriers exist and begin to solve those areas first.

We must consider and factor in the concept of density planning and the direct access to public resources. Instead of broad rezoning, we should think about how we can better utilize the existing plan with mass transit. We should develop with intentionality around our transit lines as access points to jobs, schools, parks, and public resources. Instead of continuing to allow separate industries such as schools, healthcare, public safety, etc. continue to develop and grow based primarily on economic factors, we should be creating coalition planning and incentivizing growth and expansion as part of this density planning approach.

Q36

How have you worked to combat climate change? How would you use your elected office to ensure your region drastically lowers net carbon emissions by 2030 and achieves carbon neutrality by 2050?

We need to combat climate change with a vision for economic growth. Striving to achieve status as a green city doesn't have to be about tradeoffs, but rather can be achieved with economic gains and technological opportunity. As an example, gas powered vehicles are the largest source of carbon emissions throughout our state. We continue to face gridlock with our transportation challenges. While we can reduce emissions through transportation alternatives such as biking and walking, we can also make considerable gains with a goal to create an entire mass transit program that dramatically limits the need for any gas-powered vehicles. This will not only provide increased job opportunities and economic growth through the use of new technology; it also will move us closer to the 2050 goals of carbon neutrality. We can take a similar approach when working towards energy alternatives in new construction. We transformed the automobile industry with the onset of the assembly line, and we should be partnering with the manufacturing industry today to promote their own growth by developing and utilizing these new environmentally friendly technologies throughout our city.

Q37

What specific actions will you take to address the homelessness crisis in King County, both in the short term and long term? How do you plan to implement these solutions?

We have reached a breaking point with the homelessness crisis throughout our city. Many of our neighborhoods and city parks have become unsafe for our children. Businesses struggle with theft, vandalism, and to maintain storefronts overtaken by temporary housing structures. It is inhumane to have unregulated sweeps. But it's also not just or valuing quality of life for those without homes to not provide services and support with accountability.

- We must care for all our community members by providing transitional support to those without homes, while also increasing accountability that temporary housing structures cannot become permanent fixtures that create unsafe environments.
- A coalition that includes representation from community members, housing, transportation, job training, and mental health and addiction counselors must be formed to provide specific recommendations to address the homelessness crisis. Hiring Marc Dones as the Chief Executive Officer at the King County Regional Homelessness Authority has been a great step in the right direction to help lead this regional approach.

Q38

"Structural racism is not always caused by racist actors – it is caused by institutional arrangements overlaid on historical policies that continue to perpetuate racialized outcomes." - Stephen Menendian How would you use your position to work to dismantle these arrangements including, but not limited to, exclusionary land use policies?

As I have shared, inaction is just as harmful as not actively responding to the systemic and institutional racism barriers that exist throughout city governance and society. We must continue to use data and hear from our communities most impacted by institutional and structural racism. Reform is not a singular act and must be intentional, targeted, and ongoing. I would suggest the following actions to begin to address the structural racism in our city government:

- An immediate city-wide audit must occur to address our implicit bias and institutional racism that continues to exist in our actions and city laws/policies.
- Immediate and ongoing analysis of current policies and actions to monitor, assess, and adjust any negative and exclusionary practices currently being used.
- Professional development and training need to be implemented for city employees to target and eliminate unjust and racist actions.
- Departments throughout the city must adopt equity-based hiring practices that ensure city offices represent the diversity found in our city.

(Question removed)
Will you commit to ending the ban on apartments and condos on Seattle's residential land, thereby allowing more housing types, such as triplexes, town homes, and small apartment buildings, to be built across the city?	Qualified

Q41

For any yes/no questions you answered "qualified" please explain:

-I am unsure how to quantify "non-trivial" donations, but I do make donations to Democratic candidates and the Democratic party.

-Forced removal of homeless encampments (aka sweeps) are inhumane. Support, regulation and accountability must be included as part of the growing crisis that has gone unresolved.

-Bike lanes are an integral part of a comprehensive transportation system. When included, they need to be fully integrated into the transit flow, including investments in proper signage and traffic control so that it promotes safety for cyclists while still addressing a need in the transportation system.

-I support rezoning efforts to provide additional and affordable housing. This has to be a measured process with oversight to avoid unregulated access of developers coming in for pure profit.

Q42

What actions would you take to address homelessness? Please consider addressing land use, revenue, regional collaboration, the role of social services, the role of the police and justice system.

We have reached a breaking point with the homelessness crisis throughout our city. Many of our neighborhoods and city parks have become unsafe for our children. Businesses struggle with theft, vandalism, and to maintain storefronts overtaken by temporary housing structures. It is inhumane to have unregulated sweeps. But it's also not just or valuing quality of life for those without homes to not provide services and support with accountability.

Q43

Seattleites are divided on how to fund and what to fund within police work and public safety. How would you help bring the community together and adjust the Seattle Police Department (SPD) budget as needed? By approximately what % would you adjust the SPD budget?

Racism continues to permeate throughout our society. This is not the Seattle community we want for our kids. The conversation needs to be around addressing resource gaps in social and behavioral health services, and then reallocating, and not defunding. Our goal should be aimed at providing supports and services to our community that focuses on restoration, and not punitive consequences. Programs like LEAD provide an infrastructure that can be used as part of the safety and security organization of the city. We have an obligation to provide for the safety and well-being of our community. Once the infrastructure of supports has been set, an expansion of the 211 resources model, can be used for community members to reach out to so that they can be directed to the appropriate supports.

Q44

How will you prioritize transportation infrastructure for biking, pedestrians, transit, commercial vehicles, and cars? Which do you view as most important to prioritize funds for?

Public transportation needs to be considered both locally and regionally. The highest priority should be in investing more into a comprehensive transit system that interconnects our city neighborhoods. This also needs to work on concert with the regional transit system that then gives access to and between our neighboring cities and suburban neighborhoods.
