What does it stand for?

It is the National Origin-Based Antidiscrimination for Nonimmigrants Act (“NO BAN Act”).

What does the bill do?

The NO BAN Act is a historic civil rights bill that would end the Muslim Ban, Refugee and Asylum bans, and prevent future acts of faith-based discrimination in immigration and travel to the United States.

The bill seeks to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) in two key ways:

- outlawing discrimination in the entry of immigrants or nonimmigrants based on religion;
- limiting presidential authority to suspend or restrict the entry of non-citizens to align with responsible uses of the power by prior administrations from both parties.

The NO BAN Act also

- explicitly repeals all versions of the Muslim Ban;
- repeals the asylum ban and enhanced restrictions preventing refugees from entering the country;
- puts key congressional consultation, notification, and reporting requirements in place as important safeguards against future abuse of authority;
- allows those impacted any future, illegal bans to take legal action for redress

What happens next?

The bill has been introduced in both Chambers; it goes to the Judiciary Committees in both the Senate and the House of Representatives.
