

Infrastructure, Construction & Engineering Leadership Summit 19 - 22 February | Auckland

New Zealand is on the cusp of change, which means leaders within the Infrastructure, Construction and Engineering industry must be prepared in a variety of ways. To establish authority in these turbulent times, leaders must brace for emerging challenges and adapt to new technologies with courage and confidence.

The inaugural Infrastructure, Construction and Engineering Leadership Summit will bring together renowned industry leaders to discuss the future of executive leadership. Whether you're an established or emerging leader, you'll learn new skills for leading fearlessly and flourishing in the digital age.

Build new skills and learn how to leverage existing ones to achieve new heights in your leadership journey. Case studies from Craig Davidson and Cynthia Gillespie cover achieving success through team excellence, and future-proofing your leadership, while industry leaders from Downer New Zealand, Housing New Zealand and Hamilton City Council come together in an interactive panel discussion on Leadership in the 2020's - A discussion on future leadership. Experienced leadership coaches will lead expert commentaries on leading through prosperity and turbulence, leading as a chameleon, and applying 'lean thinking' to provide leaders with tools needed to lead through times of change.
