Lewis Roca Rothgerber LLP is disappointed by the television ad that recently ran regarding Adam Laxalt. Not only does the ad falsely describe our firm's conclusions following Adam's initial review, but it ignores Adam's performance in the period after that initial review. The firm also has previously stated that the release of internal firm documents was not authorized by the firm, making the ad's use of unattributed notes in those documents especially inappropriate. The firm stands by its previous statement that Adam is a capable and talented attorney, who made excellent contributions to our firm, and who served his clients well.
