Methodology

- Environics telephone surveys of approximately 500 eligible voters in each of six federal ridings in Alberta between September 15 and 18, 2015 on vote intention in a federal election and various other questions.
- The surveys were conducted using Interactive Voice Response (IVR) technology, and were weighted by age and gender to reflect the demographic makeup of the electorate.
- Survey of this magnitude will yield results which can be considered accurate in each riding to within about plus or minus 4.5 percentage points, 19 times out of 20.

Methodology

Riding	Field dates	Sample size	Margin of error
Edmonton Centre	Sept 15-16	547	4.2
Edmonton Manning	Sept 15-16	512	4.3
Edmonton Riverbend	Sept 15-16	522	4.3
Edmonton West	Sept 15-16	618	3.9
St. Albert-Edmonton	Sept 15-17	1,030	3.1
Lethbridge	Sept 15-18	639	3.8

Highlights

- The Conservatives lead in all six ridings.
- The NDP is closest in Edmonton Centre where the Conservatives currently lead by just four points. NDP candidates in Edmonton Riverbend, Edmonton Manning and Lethbridge are also very much in contention. The Liberals are in second place Edmonton West but are losing to Conservative candidate by a very wide margin.
- Liberal voters overwhelmingly have the NDP as second choice and vice-versa. In most ridings people think the NDP has the best chance of beating the Conservatives, though in some ridings where Liberals have higher profile candidates they are more likely to be seen as having the better chance.
- About one third of voters in each riding feel that the Alberta NDP win has made them more likely to consider the federal NDP

James Cumming CPC narrowly leads Gil McGowan of the NDP in Edmonton Centre. Liberal Randy Boissonnault is a distant third.
