

Climate damage is here, now.

Catastrophic bushfires. Blistering heatwaves. Reef bleaching. Severe drought. It's harming the people we love and it's getting worse. The 2019 federal election must be a turning point.

Solutions are here, now.

We know how to power our lives with energy from the wind and sun and store clean energy in batteries. With vision, creativity and care, we can keep enjoying life on this beautiful continent.

We are here, now.

Together we're using our voices and votes to make the climate election, so our next government will have no choice but to step up and lead. This is an era that demands courage and action. So let's get on with it.

BE A CLIMATE VOTER

Together we're running a huge campaign to make stopping climate damage such a big election issue, our next government will have no choice but to step up and lead.

We are living in an era that demands courage and action. So let's get on with it.

One million conversations

We're aiming to have a million conversations about why this is the climate election. Huge teams of volunteers are talking to people street by street, door by door, asking them to be climate voters.

We've built a whizz-bang dialler so volunteers across the country can have conversations from their own mobile phones. They're calling people in three key electorates where parties have to compete on issues to get elected.

Raise our voices

We're tallying up the number of climate voters in each electorate to demonstrate this is a vote changer. If they want our votes, all parties must step up to stop climate damage and shift to clean energy.

We're making this campaign visible in streets and in the media to get people talking and show this is a major issue.

Use our votes

We'll rate the parties' policies in an independent scorecard to help voters make informed choices, and share the verdict in a huge ad campaign.

As soon as the election's called, we will unleash billboards, advertising and huge flocks of volunteers to tell voters everywhere how the parties stack up so they know what they're really voting for.

If they want our votes, our next government must step up to stop climate damage.

No more burning coal. Stop Adani's climate-wrecking mine. It's time for clean, renewable energy from the sun and wind.
