After the sensational victory of Jeremy Corbyn, what is the new deal for the workers?

1.30pm – 4.30pm
Saturday, 21 November,
Methodist Central Hall, Westminster

In advance of the government’s Autumn Statement, the TUCG has organised a major event in the campaign against austerity.

Speakers: Shadow chancellor, John McDonnell MP
Yanis Varoufakis, academic and former Greek finance minister
Senior representatives of unions and campaign organisations.

1.30 pm: Fighting austerity – a new deal for the workers

2.15 pm: Q&A with John McDonnell and Yanis Varoufakis

3.45 pm: Building the alternative

Entrance is by advance ticket only.
Register online at http://tucg.eventbrite.co.uk

A Rally for all trade unionists and anti-austerity campaigners
Inequality and poverty are growing. Public services, jobs, pay, and pensions are under constant attack. The rich get tax breaks while tax credits and benefits for the poor and the disabled are cut. We have a housing crisis, a health service in financial meltdown, education and justice systems facing privatisation. We have a transport system grinding to a halt, while handing rip-off profits to the privateers. Around the world, war rather than peace is the dominant approach and we face impending environmental disaster and a growing refugee crisis.

But what do we want from a radical government?
The TUCG unions are campaigning for:

- A charter of workers’ rights
- A fair and redistributive tax system
- Foreign policy based on peace and disarmament
- Re-nationalisation of rail and public utilities
- Academies and free schools returned to local democratic accountability with national pay and conditions
- Access to justice for all
- Decent, affordable housing for all
- Curbing the power of the media barons
- Properly funded public services and welfare provision, and the reversal of all privatisation and outsourcing.

What are your questions for John McDonnell and Yanis Varoufakis?
Email them in advance to: tucg2015@gmail.com