

Brittany Denunzio

Bargaining Committee Member Nominee

My background:

- I am a proud Indigenous woman (Iroquois ancestry).
- I am the Occupational Health and Safety Training Coordinator with SSEM. My job here is to ensure training compliance and create/implement OHS Programs that keep our employees safe.
- I am a mother to a beautiful 7-year-old girl.

What I stand for:

- First, as an OHS Practitioner, I believe in internal responsibility. I believe we all (workers, managers and employers) play a role in ensuring employees get home to their families each night.
- Secondly, I believe that equity is important in order for us to become better as a society. When we lift one person up, we lift us all up.
- Lastly, I believe in Truth and Reconciliation and that we will all become better when we provide support for our elders and future generations.

My experience:

- I have over 10 years of OHS and Management experience combined.
- I have both educational and real-life experience when it comes to labour relations and bargaining committees.
- With previous employers I sat on bargaining committees (on the employer side) to ensure that employee safety was a top priority. Having experience on the “other side of the table” is imperative when sitting on a bargaining committee. When selecting a bargaining committee member, it is important they understand how bargaining works, how employers think and how to work together to build relationships.

My goal:

- To become a Bargaining Committee Member with the BCIT BCGEU
