Join Beall's after school Gardening Club where students can explore the magic of watching a tiny seed turn into something they can eat. Students will learn about different types of gardens and farms, what is needed to grow a plant from a seed, how to take care of it and why gardening and farming is important. Students will get hands-on experience using gardening tables in Beall's courtyard. They will also get to sprout seeds, make their own watering can, design their own gardening journal and bring home recipes to try with family and friends. The Gardening Club is a great way to ignite an interest in where food comes from as well as spark curiosity about trying new foods.
