

2019 Divest Ed Organizing Fellowship

Are you ready to take your campus divestment organizing to the next level?

Join us for a year of digital trainings, in-person retreats, and a placement in our summer program, in our first ever cohort of the Divest Ed Organizing Fellowship!

Our national year-long Organizing Fellowship provides deep leadership development, mentorship, and community for a dedicated cohort of student divestment organizers who will build impactful and sustainable divestment campaigns.

Early Bird Deadline: Monday, 11/12
Final Deadline: Wednesday, 11/28
Apply now! <https://bit.ly/2019fellow>

Program Details

- Free! There is no fee to participate, though fellows will have to figure out travel for the retreats.
- Year-long commitment - fellows participate for the spring, summer, and fall.
- Minimum of 2 students per campus must apply to participate.
- All fellows are required to attend a 4-day training retreat from January 18-21, and a 5-day training retreat from June 9-13.
- During the spring and fall, fellows attend regular digital training calls and receive monthly campaign coaching with our Campus Organizers.
- During the summer, fellows attend monthly training calls. Fellows also have the option to participate in our stipended community organizing summer program in Boston!
- We view climate justice through the lens of race, gender, class, and the history of the United States. Fellows are expected to unpack and apply anti-oppression into their campus organizing.

Cost will not be a barrier to participate. Financial assistance is available for travel costs for the retreats and for those for whom participating in the Fellowship would pose a financial hardship.

Who should apply?

- Current undergraduate students attending a college in the United States, and who will still be on campus in Fall 2019. First and second years are encouraged to apply!
- Students involved in fossil fuel divestment campaigns on their campuses.
- Students who are new to organizing and may not have leadership positions in their campaign yet, but are looking to get more involved.
- Students who are passionate about developing a national climate movement through mentorship and relationship building.
- Students who identify as people of color, indigenous, first generation, low-income, LGB, trans, nonbinary, or disabled, and students who come from communities currently impacted by climate & environmental injustice are highly encouraged to apply. Because Divest Ed aims to have the divestment movement be represented by those first and worst impacted by climate change, the fellowship will prioritize students who share such marginalized identities and experiences.

See the FAQ and online application at <https://bit.ly/2019fellow>

Questions? Please contact Rachel Schlueter, Campus Organizer, at rachel@betterfutureproject.org.

@divestdotorg