Cumberland County Freeholder

Angela Bardoe has spent her adult life serving others. Primarily she has done this through her employment as an educational interpreter for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing community within the Vineland Board of Education. She has also freelanced as a community interpreter which recently included the honor of interpreting for Ambassador Phil Murphy at the Vineland Town Hall community event.

Angela was born and raised in the Villas in Cape May County, NJ. Raised alongside her brother by a single mother provided her with the experience of living in poverty and depending upon social services at times for their very survival. She also has had the experience of being a single mother herself for a time and knows how difficult it is to be the breadwinner; emphasizing how vital it is to have a frugal budget and live within your means. These experiences clinched her resolve that humanity is interconnected and depend on one another for mutual reliance and encouragement. For Angela, it is natural to support others in achieving their potential while protecting the most vulnerable among us. Giving back to the community is her intention through a conscientious desire to be accessible, listen and make the needs and concerns of Pittsgrove residents a priority in her life.

While a single mother and working a full-time job and a part-time job, Angela attended Camden County College obtaining her interpreting degree and began working toward her Bachelor's Degree in Social Services through Thomas Edison State University. She plans on completing this degree this year now that her children are grown.

These life experiences coupled with her Buddhist spiritual path have inspired her to offer what wisdom and compassion she has developed to her position as Pittsgrove Township Committeewoman and looks forward to serving with joy.
