

MARIJUANA

THE BIG WINNER IN 2014 NOVEMBER ELECTIONS

Alaska, Oregon and Washington D.C. legalize any use of marijuana by adults 21 and over.

Alaska - 52% YES 48% NO

Oregon - 54% YES 46% NO

Washington D.C. - 70% YES 30% NO

Although medical marijuana did not become legal in Florida because it needed 60% of the vote, it did receive 58% of the vote.

58% is a significant victory as 58% is a higher percentage of votes than most candidates got in Florida's elective office races. Another way to look at it is if a candidate had to get 60% of the vote to get elected in Florida, almost every single elected office would be vacant.

Medical marijuana was legalized in Guam. Initiatives in cities across the country to decriminalize or even legalize marijuana went well for the most part, but in California medical marijuana collective ordinances did not do that well – but taxing medical marijuana sure did.

In 2012 Colorado and Washington legalized marijuana. The sky did not fall and voters know it won't fall in Alaska, Oregon and Washington D.C. either.

Prior to the November election, some Republicans in congress threatened to introduce legislation to overturn any legalization initiative passed by voters in Washington D.C. Does the Republican takeover of the U.S. Senate threaten the progress that has been made on both medical marijuana and marijuana legalization? Will Republicans attempt to reverse the legalization initiatives that have been passed? What can they do? What can we do if they do?
