“I have a proposal for drawing the Congressional District lines in California that will almost eliminate political manipulation. Each congressional district is to have a predetermined number of residents in it and California is entitled to a set number of districts. My proposal is to start in the North West corner of the state, draw a square mile box southeastward adding one square mile at a time maintaining the square shape until you have the appropriate number of residents. Then start a similar box to the east of the previous one until reaching the Nevada state line. Then drop down and do the same thing westbound to the ocean. Repeat this process to the Mexican border. This will present some challenges in the denser population areas but is still very doable. Some massaging will be necessary along major roadways and waterways. This will prevent an area like currently exists in southeastern San Diego county having a thin band connecting it to an area in southwest Riverside county allowing for a republican dominated district with very divergent requirements and needs being formed. I believe this is the fairest manner to divide the states congressional districts. Respectfully, Gerald Vasser”
