“My name is Nathan Ahle and I am a resident of Clovis. I wanted to give my perspective on the community my family and I live in, and what makes it special and worthy of continuing to be its own district. Our communities in North Fresno, usually defined as north of Bullard Avenue, and the city of Clovis share school districts, sports leagues, proximity to the same shopping, transportation corridors, service clubs, and places of worship. As a community we share water districts, public safety protection, and amenities that do not exist in other parts of Fresno, or in other cities throughout the county. Our community of North Fresno and Clovis have traditionally been a part of the same legislative and congressional districts because of our similarity and unique features, and those features that have made us our own district in the past remain as our population grows. Our representatives and this commission have traditionally respected and taken into consideration the characteristics that make North Fresno and Clovis one community. I continue to ask for that same position going forward.
