“In all districts and visualizations, it is important to not separate Cal Poly Pomona from the City of Pomona. Part of Cal Poly Pomona is on unincorporated land but this causes significant problems for students and staff for voting and for lobbying their elected representatives when the boundaries match city limits. In past elections, many provisional ballots had to be made for Cal Poly Pomona students living in dorms in the unincorporated area. The congressional, assembly, and senate district boundaries should keep Cal Poly Pomona grouped with the City of Pomona, meaning that if there is a boundary line, it matches with the university property line. This will alleviate confusion from dorm residents and enhance get out the vote activities and the university’s ability to reach the elected officials in their district on the matters that affect them.”
