

Some of the most important people in the world want to spend time with you

Your family

Busy families, more than anyone, need a way to refocus on the important things in life: Spending time together. Talking about what matters. Doing the things that make a difference in the world.

Christian Family Movement (CFM) brings families together to do just these things. Who is in CFM? We welcome young families, blended families, single parents, empty-nesters, newly marrieds, grandparents, interfaith families – people who believe in the importance of Christian families.

Join us as we start a chapter of the national Christian Family Movement at St. Thomas of Villanova. We plan to meet monthly at the school, and while the adults are in one room discussing a topic from our booklet, the children meet separately. Then we all get together for a family activity and socializing. On other days we will share service projects or activities related to living our faith.

Find out more after all the Masses on Sept 27 & 28 or call Mary Spila at 847.991.4298 or Kate O'Connell at 847.776.7352. You can also join us at our first meeting on October 24, 2003. Check out the official website at www.cfm.org
