

This toolkit helps DACA recipients and impacted communities stay informed about the current status of the DACA program, highlights key resources amid a constantly shifting landscape, and offers tools to elevate the voices of DACA recipients and impacted communities and drive the message that DACA recipients strengthen the social and institutional fabric of the United States.

Note: Links and references to organizational resources do not indicate an endorsement of said resources or associated organization. Please contact each organization directly with questions.

Note: This toolkit provides a reference to resources, but it is not a replacement for legal advice. Seek legal advice about your specific case from a local immigration attorney or Board of Immigrant Appeals accredited representative.

DACA RIGHT NOW

June 18, 2020: the Supreme Court declared the Trump Administration’s 2017 attempt to terminate DACA unlawful. The Supreme Court ordered the Administration to continue accepting new DACA applications, requests for Advance Parole, and DACA renewals.

On July 28, 2020 the Department of Homeland Security released a memo declaring the agency would institute “interim” changes to the DACA program while the Trump Administration considered a renewed attempt to rescind DACA completely.

On November 14, 2020, a federal judge in New York City ruled acting secretary of the Department of Homeland Security, Chad Wolf, assumed his position unlawfully, and as such, his limitation of DACA protections is invalidated.

On December 4, 2020, a federal judge in New York City ruled that the July 28th memo must be put aside and the government must fully reinstate the DACA program. This means that the DACA program is functioning as it was originally before the Trump Administration tried ending it in 2017. Because of ongoing litigation, the DACA program continues to be at risk and there may be a limited window of opportunity to submit a first-time DACA application or Advance Parole.

HOW THIS AFFECTS ELIGIBILITY, FIRST-TIME APPLICATIONS, AND RENEWALS

Eligibility at a Glance

Currently, the Department of Homeland Security:

-  Will accept first-time DACA applications
-  Note: If you're eligible to apply as a first time-applicant, you may want to take advantage of this opportunity and apply. The DACA program is still at risk, and the window to apply may be short. Please seek legal advice about your specific case from a local immigration attorney or Board of Immigrant Appeals accredited representative before applying.
-  Will accept advance parole applications based on humanitarian, educational, and employment reasons.
-  Will continue to accept DACA renewal applications for those who have or have had DACA
-  Note: DHS has returned the duration of deferred action and employment authorization back to two years. If you were granted renewal of DACA for one year, your DACA and work authorization will be automatically extended to two years.

What you Need to Know about Renewal Applications

- Renewal applications are accepted, and the duration for deferred action and employment authorization has returned to two years.
- If your DACA has been expired for one year or less, you can request to renew your DACA by filling out a renewal application. If your DACA has been terminated or expired for one year or more, you can submit a first-time DACA application
- Stay consistent. Reference previous application for content but use the most recent forms from USCIS: I-821D; I-765; I-765WS; G-1145. Your application will be rejected if you use old forms.
- Make a checklist of your application packet:
 - $495 Money Order (use the USCIS Fee Calculator to confirm your amount at time of filing)
 - Cover letter (include a bulleted list of all items)
 - Completed forms: I-821D; I-765; I-765WS; G-1145 with copies of all supporting evidence
 - Note: Use paperclips, not staples, to combine papers
- When ready to send your application packet:
 - Check the USCIS website for filing addresses
 - Track the package. Use priority shipping with a tracking number
- To pay for your application:
- Request funds from United We Dream's DACA Renewal Fund; contact the organizations listed on the directory to verify services and scholarships
- Locate local pro bono legal services using Informed Immigrant's Legal Service Directory or Immigration Advocates Network's National Immigration Legal Services Directory
- DACA beneficiaries of Mexican origin can approach their consulates for an immigration screening and individualized legal assistance. Visit United We Dream's list of resources and Mexican Consulates. You can also call 855-463-6395.

Note: It is strongly recommended to speak with an immigration attorney or a Board of Immigration Appeals accredited representative for an individual assessment before submitting an advance parole application, first-time DACA application, or DACA renewal application

Note: Given ongoing litigation challenging the legality of the DACA program as well as the upcoming change in presidential administration, it is important to keep up to date with the latest developments to the DACA program and eligibility. This resource will be updated regularly to best reflect ongoing changes.

ELEVATE YOUR VOICE | DIGITAL ADVOCACY TOOLS

The Cities for DACA campaign will provide multiple platforms to help you—and advocates—highlight what DACA does for your city, county, economy, and broader communities. The campaign is a multi-pronged effort that focuses on keeping both city governments informed as well as assisting community-based organizations to disseminate on-point information that may help individuals and families in their networks. Our aim is to make clear that this story isn't simply about DACA: it's about who we are as a country.

The following Cities for DACA Digital Advocacy Tools are available to help you, your families, neighbors, and local advocacy groups to take action to help protect immigrants, particularly DACA recipients, within your local jurisdictions. Please use our messaging, graphics, and guidance to stay informed about the frequently changing guidelines of the DACA program, share resources with your networks, help educate decision makers, and increase awareness about DACA amongst local elected leaders.

Share Our Videos

The Cities for DACA video series highlights the lived experiences, stories and contributions of DACA recipients throughout the country, ultimately showcasing what #DACADOES and why America needs DACA.

Cities for DACA will be sharing this series via their website: www.citiesforaction.us/citiesforDACA. We encourage you to check out the videos, comment, and share widely.
