

Human Rights Issues: On-line Resources

B.C. Human Rights Coalition

Many Human Rights agencies across Canada have developed fact sheets, guides and policies in regards to human rights issues. Plain language publications and guides are for anyone seeking general knowledge about basic human rights concepts, or are useful for those seeking guidance about applying the law in their workplace or elsewhere. Policies, on the other hand, reflect legislative changes to each jurisdiction's law as well as updates due to case law developments. Policies assume a basic knowledge level of human rights law and are useful for those seeking additional information, details, or supporting references. Human resources managers, lawyers, equity professionals and other practitioners will benefit most from these documents.

The following links are provided for informational purposes only. Please keep in mind that where materials are available through sources outside of B.C., they were likely developed and represent an interpretation of that other jurisdiction's human rights legislation only. Variations do exist between the various provincial and federal human rights legislations.
