The Boy Who Harnessed the Wind Author Visit

The New York Times–bestselling author of The Boy Who Harnessed the Wind shared his inspirational journey with our community on Saturday, Feb. 22, as part of the Clearview Reads author series. In addition to his author talk, Kamkwamba extended his trip to include time at three Weld RE-4 schools: Windsor Charter School, Windsor Middle School, and Rangeview Elementary. One teacher observed that he was “a great real-life role model for the kids.”

Intergenerational Programming

In September and October, the Friends & Foundation sponsored ($2,000 grant) a series of fascinating virtual interviews with four local residents who have deep roots in the Windsor, Severance, and West Greeley communities. Capturing a Generation interviews are available at: bit.ly/3myXaAX

Windsor native Tom Macy brings eight decades of Windsor memories to life in his video reflections.

Take’n Make Craft Kits

Throughout the 2020 holiday season, we provided free ($1,000 grant) craft kits that families picked up and completed together at home. By temporarily shifting from books to crafts, we were able to fulfill our commitment to children’s programs despite the restrictions of the pandemic.
