

Finding Direction in the Early Years

Are you considering which specialty is for you?

Struggling to see how to balance faith, work, family...?

Wondering what being a Christ Follower could look like in a secular workplace?

This panel of registrars don't have all the answers but they've worked through these same questions and will share their take on these and more. Training in a variety of specialities, they'll share how they chose their vocational pathway and some challenges for them in their field. Some have taken time out from training and we'll hear their stories. We anticipate that this will be of interest to students and early post-grads. There'll be time along the way for Q&A's.

Facilitated by Dr Matt Chamberlain who has lost track of how many PGY's he's at. Starting his registrar career off in Internal medicine he saw the light and switched over to Psychiatry. Out of work, he's into mountain biking, trail running and tramping with mates.

Dr Sophie Meyer (PGY4) is in her first year of GP training, doing this part-time. In the time that remains she looks after her wee 1 year old Nathan, enjoys board games, plays keys at church and does general super Mum things.

Dr Garrick Edge (PGY5) is doing RACP basic training for adult medicine and is currently on oncology. Outside of work he enjoys hanging out with good sorts (including his wife and his 2 month old son Luke), chatting and cooking, particularly fine Italian food.

Dr Steph Hight (PGY5) is a Paediatric Registrar. She job shares to enable a work-life balance and spends her time enjoying William (her almost 2 year old), cleaning up after William, creating crafts and baking all the tasty things.
