

Be a friend!

Columbia University Glee Club Alums & Friends encourages active support for Glee Club for Columbia students of today and tomorrow. Since 1873, the Columbia University Glee Club seems to work best when active, interested alums and friends support the initiatives and direction of the club's student leaders.

A note on today's program

Formed in 1873 by students singing glees and warbles, the all-male Columbia University Glee Club evolved over the years, adding women with the advent of co-education in the 1980's. Today's program reflects both all-male and mixed voice repertoires.

Singing today are some of the more than 1,000 women and men, drawn from many Schools in the University, who sang with the club from 1950 to 2009 and have been drawn to this event by the memories of their experiences.

Now physicians, attorneys, teachers, business executives and – yes, some musicians – these alums know the special bond that comes from "lifting voices" with their Columbia classmates.
