EL CENTRO COMUNITARIO POR EL AGUA

Dear Community Water Center Friends and Supporters,

Happy 2019 and hope your new year has gotten off to a good start. The water justice movement is as busy as ever, and we wanted to reach out to share a schedule of CWC's 2019 events. Details can be found on the next page.

Some are new, including our partnership with the Brower Center in Berkeley, and others, you will recognize as our annual signature events in Sacramento and Visalia. Due to popular demand, we are also hold another year of an "Evening of Art and Justice," which brings together art lovers and social justice advocates in beautiful surroundings and spectacular sculpture art.

All of CWC's events are designed to share more about the fight for water justice, celebrate the progress made by the collective, raise funds for The Center, and create opportunities for people new to the movement to be inspired to join us.

As CWC reflects on 2018, we are proud of what we have accomplished alongside our community partners, allies and supporters - including launching our largest civic engagement project to date, getting within striking distance of passing the Safe and Affordable Drinking Water Fund, and expanding our leadership cohort of local elected officials that share our values and dedication toward prioritizing the Human Right to Water for their communities. We have also opened a Central Coast office to expand our presence on the ground in low-income communities of color who are forced to live with staggering levels of nitrate and other contamination.

We can see that our work is not done, and we need your continued partnership to end this crisis.

Please review our upcoming opportunities to partner and show your support for CWC. We look forward to another year of meaningful progress toward a shared future where our communities thrive, and have access to safe, clean and affordable drinking water.

With gratitude,

Natalie Garcia Grazier

Water Justice Leadership Awards February 19th

Every year, we honor courageous leaders who are fighting for water justice. Those recognized include elected officials, local grassroots leaders and organizations who have demonstrated dedication, passion and hard work to make the Human Right to Water in California a reality. Past honorees include State Senate Pro Tems Kevin De Leon and Bill Monning, and State Water Board Member Tam Doduc.

Brower Center Educational Event in Berkeley - April 3rd

This free event will provide an overview of California's drinking water crisis impacting more than one million people. This event is in response to feedback from Californians from all parts of the state who said that they don't know that contaminated drinking water was an issue in California. The Brower Center currently houses 28 environment-focused organizations and is partnering on outreach for this event.

An Evening of Art and Justice May

Held on a beautiful estate with a private sculpture art collection of more than 150 pieces in Woodside, CA, an Evening of Art and Justice is a space for art lovers and advocates for social justice to learn more about California's drinking water crisis and ways to get involved in the movement.

Visalia Water Justice Celebration September/October

Our annual celebration to recognize the leadership and hard work of our grassroots community leaders directly impacted by California's drinking water crisis. We invite our community partners, local and statewide elected officials, ally organizations and donors to join us in celebrating progress in the fight for water justice.
