National Police Remembrance Day

Today's National Police Remembrance Day commemorative service recognises the ultimate sacrifice made by Territory police officers in their line of duty serving and protecting the community.

Deputy Leader of the Opposition and Shadow Minister for Police, Lia Finocchiaro said that National Police Remembrance Day was an important day for Territory Police and their families.

"National Police Remembrance Day commemorates the ultimate sacrifice made by Police Officers and their colleagues across Australasia and the South-West Pacific region.

"Our police put their lives at risk every day in dangerous and unpredictable jobs in what can be a sometimes thankless task.

"This is a special day for our Police Force, and I encourage all Territorians to say thank you to our police today for serving and protecting our community," said Ms Finocchiaro.
