

Ms Smith was a student in my class in the 1st semester course "Dimensions of European Integration: Work, Labour and Social Reproduction". She always showed great interest in the diverse topics and actively participated both in the student's working groups during class and in the plenary discussions. Moreover, she proved her social and intercultural skills and communicative capacities in class. Ms Smith also stands out for her commitment to gender equality issues and social inclusion.

The performance of Ms Smith in our MA program as well as in her previous studies proves her high motivation, commitment and her intellectual capabilities which are necessary to successfully graduate at this University and proceed into the international political arena.

Moreover, Ms Smith gained already various working experience in internships and jobs in different fields, including her commitment as a volunteer, and acquired a broad set of competences and skills. Her CV proves already her international orientation.

On the basis of this positive impression and the very good achievements of Ms Smith, I strongly recommend her for the DAG DPCA Voting Representative Candidacy. I am convinced that she will successfully fulfill the role & contribute to international politics.

Yours Sincerely,
Bettina Schrenk
