

NM Democratic Party Economic Development

Mike Daly from Gallup is looking to form an Economic Development Caucus of the State Democratic Party. He suggested several ideas on clean energy connected to the State's Energy Transition Act to move NM to 100% carbon-free energy by 2045. Mike suggested we look at transforming heating and cooling systems to be more efficient and some ways in which we could save water in our homes. Daly is looking for ideas that we can move forward as Democrats to improve the NM economy.

In line with this, Tom Bowles is leading an effort with NM State University to develop a Roadmap for a sustainable clean energy economy in NM. The Roadmap will address technical, workforce, environmental, regulatory, and economic issues.

Starting a Democratic Economic Development Caucus could provide a good means of GOTV next November by showing Democrats are working to improve the economy.

Daly needs 15 members to form a Caucus and currently has 11 interested people. Please let Tom Bowles (Tom_Bowles@comcast.net) know if you are interested in participating.
