ABOUT END OF LIFE PLANNING CANADA

Our Mission

End of Life Planning Canada is a national charitable organization. Our mission is to help Canadians to navigate the end-of-life experience with confidence and dignity.

Our Mandate

We promote research and provide information, education and support to help individuals and their families to plan for a gentle and dignified death, and to navigate the health care system with confidence that their rights and preferences will be respected to the very end.

We offer a broad program of information, education and support about health care rights and options at the end of life. We:

- Encourage Canadians to think about their wishes for end-of-life care, to understand their options for achieving those wishes, and to make their preferences known to their families, caregivers and health care providers in the event they should become unable to speak for themselves in the future.
- Educate Canadians about legal rights and options at the end of life, to promote informed decision-making and improve the quality of their interactions with the health care system.
- Offer personal, confidential support to individuals and/or their families who wish to discuss end-of-life rights, options and preferences in a safe and compassionate place.
- Provide resource materials such as patient rights booklets and advance care planning kits tailored to each province and territory, and conduct seminars, discussion groups and workshops to offer practical advice on how to plan for a gentle and dignified death.

Funding

End of Life Planning Canada is funded by donations from individuals, foundations and corporations that support the work that we do. Many of our services are provided by volunteers. To donate, please go to www.elplanning.ca.

INTRODUCTION

This Advance Care Planning Kit invites you to think about and express your wishes for health care and treatment at the end of life. The kit is intended to provoke thinking, conversation and planning, and to encourage communication between you, your family and your health care providers.

The kit guides you through the process of considering your personal values and asks you to imagine medical situations that could happen to you. It walks you through the steps of drafting a Health Care Directive and choosing a health care proxy; this is the person authorized to speak for you if you are unable to speak for yourself.

The kit contains information on medical interventions such as CPR that may be used in end-of-life situations, and explains your right to refuse resuscitation. The kit also includes a glossary of terms, a summary of your legal rights as a patient, answers to some frequently asked questions, and a section on further resources.

The best time to think about your preferences for future medical care is when you are well and able. Of course it is hard to imagine how you may feel when you are not well. We offer various scenarios to help you to plan for the future, while reminding you that you can always change your mind. Advance care planning is the best way to ensure that your wishes are known to your family, your caregivers and health care providers. By doing it now, you ease the future burden of decisions that might have to be made, under difficult circumstances, by those who love and care for you.

What is a Health Care Directive?

A Health Care Directive, sometimes called an Advance Care Directive, is a document, written while you are well and able to make decisions, in which you state your wishes for medical or non-medical care, just in case you become unable to speak for yourself at some time in the future.

Why should you have a Health Care Directive?

In a medical emergency or in any other circumstance that leaves you unable to communicate, for example if you have a stroke or if you are in a coma, your Health Care Directive will assert your right to choose what you want or do not want in the way of medical treatment and care. It will help those responsible for your care to decide on your treatment. It will help your family to understand and support the decisions that you would have made yourself.

There is no legal requirement for you to have a Health Care Directive. Only you can create it – no one else can do it for you. But if you do not have a Health Care Directive, others may not know your wishes and you may be subjected to aggressive or life-prolonging medical interventions that you would not want. On the other hand you may have a specific medical condition for which you do want all available treatment. In Manitoba you need to be at least 16 years of age to have an Advance Care Directive.

Start the process now of creating your Health Care Directive by thinking about your personal values and the everyday pleasures that make life worth living.

CONSIDER YOUR PERSONAL VALUES

1. Think through a day in your life and consider what you enjoy most, what you look forward to, and what makes your life livable and workable. What gives your life purpose and meaning?

Here are some topics to get you thinking:

- Independence, autonomy
- Work
- Time for yourself
- Friends and colleagues
- Hobbies
- Holidays
- Birthdays and celebrations
- Travel
- Family
- Food
- Sports
- Exercise
- Reading
- Music
- Television, movies
- Keeping a journal or diary

2. Which of the following do you fear most near the end of life?

Rank these items from 1 to 10. Think of other concerns that you may have.

- Losing your mobility
- Being in pain
- Being incontinent
- Being alone
- Losing the ability to think, being confused most of the time
- Being a burden on loved ones
- Being dependent on others for everyday activities like eating and bathing
- Being in hospital
- Losing your sight or hearing

3. If you could plan them today, imagine what the last days of your life would be like:

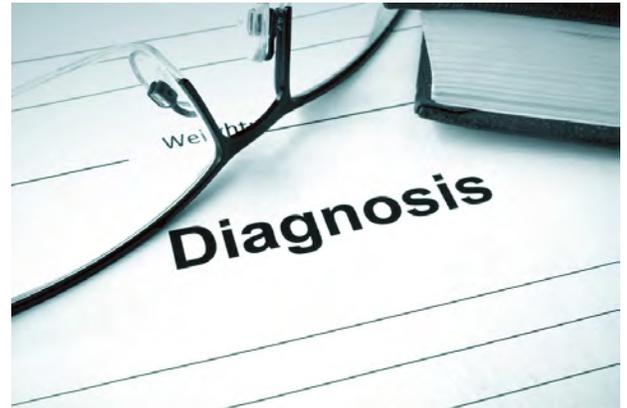

- Where would you be?
- What would you be doing?
- Who would be with you?
- What would you eat if you were able to eat?
- Would you want the comfort of spiritual support from a member of the clergy or someone who shares your religious beliefs?
- Are there people to whom you would want to write a letter or record an audio or video message, perhaps to be read, heard, or watched in the future?

4. How do you want to be remembered? If you were to write your own obituary or epitaph, what would it say?

5. What other personal values come to mind?

CONSIDER THESE MEDICAL SITUATIONS – Copy 1

Imagine various critical conditions and think about the treatment you would accept or refuse in each case. The answers will help to make things clear in your own mind so that you are better prepared for discussions with family, caregivers and physicians.

We have included in this kit two (2) copies of Consider These Medical Conditions.

- Complete Copy 1.
- Give Copy 2 to the person(s) you are considering appointing as your health care proxy. Ask them to answer the questions as though they were you.
- Compare your answers to theirs. Note and discuss differences. It is important for your proxy to understand your values and your wishes for end-of-life care.

1. You are seriously ill with cancer but your mind is still sharp. Physicians recommend chemotherapy. They explain that this treatment often has severe side effects such as pain, vomiting, and weakness. Are you willing to endure these side effects if the chances of regaining your current health are less than 25 per cent?

- Yes
- Yes, on a trial basis
- No
- I am uncertain

Note: It is your legal right to refuse or discontinue treatment. Read more about this Charter Right in Appendix 1.

2. You are seriously ill with terminal cancer but your mind is still sharp. Physicians offer chemotherapy to 'buy time,' giving you an 80% chance of an additional six months. Do you want this treatment even though it may have severe side effects?

- Yes
- Yes, on a trial basis
- No
- I would request medical assistance in dying
- I am uncertain

Consider These Medical Situations – Copy 1... continued

3. You have advanced Alzheimer’s disease, which has progressed to the point that you can no longer feed or toilet yourself and you no longer recognize your family, but you are not in pain. Do you want to be spoon-fed or tube-fed?

Yes
 Yes, spoon-fed only
 Yes, spoon-fed or tube-fed on a trial basis
 No
 I am uncertain

*Note: It is your legal right to refuse food or drink.
Read more about this Charter Right in Appendix 1.*

4. You have advanced Alzheimer’s disease and no longer recognize your family. You have been hospitalized twice in the past year for pneumonia, which was cured by massive doses of antibiotics. You develop pneumonia once more. Do you want aggressive treatment in hospital again, or do you prefer to be kept comfortable at home until death occurs naturally?

I want aggressive treatment, including antibiotics, to keep me alive
 I do not want treatment to keep me alive. I want comfort care at home
 I am uncertain

5. You have long-standing diabetes and your mind is still sharp. Last year you developed gangrene and lost one leg to this disease. You have now developed gangrene in your other leg and amputation has been recommended.

I want the surgery to amputate my second leg if this will keep me alive
 I do not want the surgery. I want comfort care only, even though I may die
 I would request medical assistance in dying
 I am uncertain

6. You are physically very weak but your mind is sharp. You need help with most daily activities, such as dressing, bathing, eating, and going to the toilet. You develop a severe kidney infection. Dialysis is available to you. If left untreated, the infection will likely lead to organ failure that will cause your death within weeks or months.

I want dialysis to keep me alive
 I do not want to start dialysis. I want comfort care until I die naturally
 I would request medical assistance in dying

Consider These Medical Situations – Copy 1... continued

7. You have congestive heart failure. You are always short of breath. Your swollen ankles make walking difficult. But your mind is still sharp and you enjoy time with family and friends. One day you have a severe heart attack and your heart stops beating. Do you want 911 called and CPR started?

Yes

No

I am uncertain

Note: learn more about CPR and what you can expect in Appendix 3.

8. You are terminally ill with a condition that causes great pain. Do you want to be sedated even to the point of unconsciousness if necessary to control your pain? This is called palliative sedation. Your physician can control the level of sedation to give you occasional hours of lucidity.

Yes

Yes, on a trial basis

No

I would request medical assistance in dying

I am uncertain

9. You are in a permanent coma and your body is kept alive by artificial means such as mechanical breathing and tube feeding. Physicians say you will never recover because your brain has been severely damaged. But there are a few documented cases where people have recovered from a persistent vegetative state. Do you want to be kept alive in this way just in case you may someday recover?

Yes

No

I am uncertain

10. Would you allow yourself to be temporarily placed on life support if your heart, kidneys or other body parts could be used in transplant operations to save other lives after you have died?

Yes

No

I am uncertain

Note: Manitoba does not have a registry for those who want to donate organ and tissue to register their consent online, so it is important to talk to your proxy and family about your decision.

ABOUT THE PROXY

What does it mean to have a proxy?

Making someone your proxy for health care decisions transfers to this person the authority to make decisions on your behalf concerning your personal care and your medical treatment in the event you are not able to make your wishes known.

Your proxy can be appointed as part of your Health Care Directive or in a separate form. In this toolkit we have used a single form for your convenience.

Why should I have a health care proxy?

If you are unable to communicate your wishes, your previously expressed wishes must be respected as written in your Health Care Directive or as expressed orally or in any other manner. But even if you have written a Health Care Directive, your medical condition may not be specifically addressed in your directive. Your health care proxy is authorized to make decisions on your behalf based on his or her understanding of the decisions you would have made if you were able to do so.

Your health care proxy also has the authority to make arrangements for your personal care, such as where you will live, special dietary or clothing needs, and additional help to assist you in daily living should the need arise. Your proxy is concerned with all aspects of your future personal care as well as your medical care.

Who can I appoint?

Your proxy must be

- over 18 years of age
- mentally capable and readily available to be contacted
- legally able to have access to you

It should be someone who knows you well, who will respect your religious beliefs or spiritual values, and whom you trust to carry out your wishes.

About the Proxy ... continued

You have the option to appoint more than one person and to decide in advance if they must act jointly or independently. We advise that you appoint your health care proxies to act independently.

Under the law, if you decide they must act jointly but there is not agreement, the majority will decide. If there is not a clear majority, then the first proxy named on the list decides. A requirement for joint action may also lead to disagreements or misunderstandings that can be very time consuming. But having your health care proxies act independently means that if the person you first named cannot be reached or is unable to act on your behalf, the person you named next is automatically authorized to assume the duty to decide.

Talking with your health care proxy

Sharing the statements and choices you make about your life and medical situations with your health care proxy will generate a discussion of your values and wishes. By comparing the answers your health care proxy has given to your own answers, you will see if she or he understands the wishes you have expressed for your future personal care and medical treatment, and is willing to take the responsibility to act on your wishes.

Before completing the Proxy form

The form is a legal document. Read it all the way through. When you are clear about its use, complete the form and have it witnessed. You must satisfy yourself that your health care proxy understands the wishes you have expressed and is willing to act on your behalf.

Power of attorney generally refers to financial and/or personal decisions. Personal decisions usually do not include a right to make health care decisions for someone but the power of attorney document can include a phrase specifically appointing the person as your proxy for health care decisions. In this case the person appointed as power of attorney is also the proxy.

If you do not have a proxy, your substitute decision maker (SDM) for health care is your nearest relative. Substitute decision maker(s) must be 18 years of age or older, willing, available and have capacity. They are required to make decisions based on your prior wishes, or in your best interests if your prior wishes are unknown or unclear.

About the Proxy... continued

Your nearest relative is determined by the following order (a) the spouse or person with whom the person requiring treatment cohabits and has cohabited as a spouse in a relationship of some permanence; (b) an adult son or daughter; (c) a parent or legal custodian; (d) an adult brother or sister; (e) a grandparent; (f) an adult grandchild; (g) an adult uncle or aunt; (h) an adult nephew or niece.

Signing the declaration of a proxy form.

Your declaration must be signed and dated to be recognized. It can be a separate document or part of your Health Care Directive. If you are unable to sign yourself, a substitute may sign on your behalf. The substitute must sign in your presence and in the presence of a witness. The proxy or the proxy's spouse cannot be the substitute or witness.

Keep your copy where it can be easily found in an emergency situation. Leave a note in a prominent place, such as on the fridge, with the following information:

- a) the location of your proxy form
- b) the location of your Health Care Directive form
- c) the names and contact information of the person(s) to call in an emergency.

Do not store your copy of these documents in a locked safety deposit box.

Remember: You may change your health care proxy at any time.

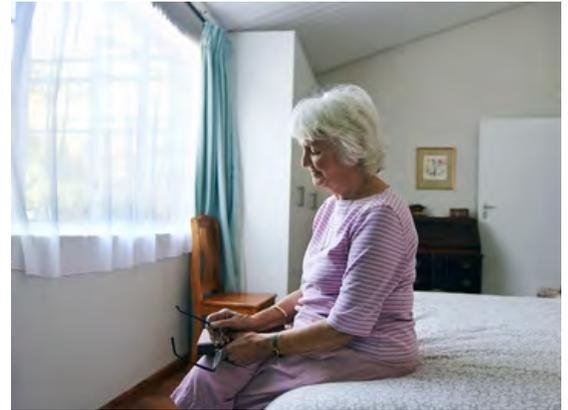

Begin by stating that you revoke any previous Health Care Directive and then complete, sign, and date a new form.

FILLING OUT THE HEALTH CARE DIRECTIVE FORM

Turn to page 17 and read the Health Care Directive form from start to finish before filling it out.

There are extra spaces for you to fill in circumstances that are not covered. For example, you may have a hereditary condition you want to add.

Pay particular attention to item 4 that pertains to the “choice to prolong” and “choice not to prolong.”

Signing and making copies

1. Make copies of the form before you sign and date it so that each copy has your original signature. Give a copy to your proxy. Keep a record of the people to whom you provide copies so that if you change your Health Care Directive, you can provide them with your new wishes and eliminate possible future confusion.
2. Talk to your physician and ask that the directive be entered in your medical records. Keep a copy where it can easily be found in an emergency situation. Leave a note in a prominent place – perhaps attached to the fridge with a magnet – indicating where to find your directive and whom to call in an emergency. Suggested additional locations for copies of your Health Care Directive include the “Just in Case” or “In Case of Emergency” contacts on your cellular phone.
3. Do not store your directive in a locked safety deposit box. It needs to be quickly accessible in case of an emergency.

You can always change your mind

Review your Health Care Directive whenever your situation changes in a major way, or every year or two. If you do not make any changes, sign the Directive again with the new date in the space at the top of the form.

Review your Health Care Directive if you move to a new address, if your spouse dies, if you get separated/divorced/remarried, or in the case of any other major life event.

If your medical condition has changed or if you have reconsidered some of your decisions, start over with a new form. You can download it from the ELPC website or request a new form by mail. Be sure to tell everyone involved in your care if you change your Directive.

Please note: If you feel you have special circumstances not addressed in these forms, we suggest that you consult with your lawyer.

YOUR HEALTH CARE DIRECTIVE

We advise you to regularly review your Health Care Directive. If you do not make changes, sign it again with the new date in the space below.

I, _____, revoke any and all previous Health Care Directives written by me.

Part 1 - Designation of a Health Care Proxy

I hereby designate the following person(s) as my Health Care Proxy:

PROXY 1

Name: _____

Address: _____

City: _____

Province: _____ Postal Code: _____

Telephone: _____

PROXY 2

Your Health Care Directive... continued

3. In the circumstances set out in condition 2 above, if life-sustaining treatments have been started and they are the only treatments keeping me alive, I want them stopped. I specifically refuse the following life support treatments:
- a)  Electrical, mechanical, or other artificial stimulation of my heart (CPR)
  - b)  Respirator or ventilator
  - c)  Artificial feeding such as G-tube, NG tube, or central intravenous line
  - d)  Being hand-fed should I no longer be able to feed myself
  - e)  Artificial hydration by intravenous line
  - f)  Antibiotics
  - g)  Transfer to an intensive care unit or similar facility
  - h) _____
  - i) _____
  - j) _____

If you do not wish to have your life prolonged under the conditions set down in 1, 2, and 3 above, you must strike out 4 completely.

If you wish to have your life prolonged and request all applicable treatments, you must completely strike out 1, 2, and 3 above, leaving only the instructions in section 4.

4.  I specifically direct that my life be prolonged and that I be provided all life-sustaining treatments applicable to my medical condition.

Note: While this directive puts your caregivers in charge of all treatment choices, you can always change your mind. For example, you can start treatments and then discontinue them.

I have other wishes:

5. I would prefer to be cared for and to die:
[ ] at home
[ ] in a hospice or palliative care unit
6. If my healthcare provider will not follow this Health Care Directive, I ask that my care be transferred to a healthcare provider who will respect my legal rights.
7. If I am in a hospital or a resident in a healthcare or long-term care facility that will not follow this Advance Directive, I ask that I be transferred to another hospital or care facility.

You have the right to be involved in all decisions about your medical care, even those not dealing with terminal conditions or persistent vegetative states. If you have wishes not covered in other parts of this document, please indicate them below:

APPENDIX 1. YOUR CHARTER RIGHTS AS A PATIENT

Healthcare laws and regulations vary slightly by province and territory but all Canadians generally share the following rights and options:

The right to be fully informed of all treatment options. This is also known as the ‘right of informed consent.’ Your physician is required to inform you of the risks and benefits of each treatment option as well as the probabilities of success.

The right to recognition of a health care proxy. You have the right to appoint a health care proxy - someone who can represent you if and when you can no longer make your own medical decisions. Your health care proxy can speak for you with the same authority as if you were speaking for yourself.

The right to recognition of a Health Care Directive. Healthcare providers are required to follow your wishes for treatment, provided they are appropriate to your medical condition and are clearly outlined in a valid Health Care Directive. The Directives you prepare may include a Do Not Resuscitate Order. Such forms are legally binding in provinces that offer them, so long as the documentation is filled out properly, signed by your physician, and kept up to date.

The right to a second opinion. It is your right to consult with another physician for any reason. Most people just want the reassurance of another viewpoint and an opportunity to speak with someone who will help them to decide on the best course of treatment.

The right to pain and symptom management. You have the right to refuse medication, but neither the Charter of Rights and Freedoms nor healthcare legislation grant you the right to demand medication. However, terminally ill persons can typically expect a vigorous pain management regimen, even if it may hasten the dying process.

The right to refuse treatment. You have the right to refuse any treatment, even if refusal might hasten your death. You also have the right to discontinue any treatment that has already started. Ethically and legally, there is no distinction between discontinuing treatment and refusing it in the first place.

The right to refuse food and drink. In Canada, nutrition and hydration by tube is considered medical treatment. You have the right to refuse or stop such treatment. You also have the right to refuse food and/or drink, and the right to refuse to be fed or given drinks by others. This option is referred to as Voluntary Stopping of Eating and Drinking (VSED) and is supported by many palliative care providers.

The right to end your own life. It is legal to end your own life in Canada and has been since suicide was removed from the Criminal Code in 1972.

The right to request an assisted death. On June 17, 2016, medical assistance in dying (MAID) became legal under some circumstances in Canada. If you are suffering from a grievous and irremediable medical condition, you can talk to your doctor or nurse practitioner about your options for treatment and care which may include medical assistance in dying.

APPENDIX 2. GLOSSARY OF MEDICAL TERMS

Allow natural death: when death is about to occur from natural causes, do not delay the moment of death with medical interventions.

Antibiotics: drugs commonly used to treat infections. Some infections can be life-threatening for a grievously ill person. Examples would be pneumonia or an infection in the blood or brain.

Artificial nutrition: feeding by a method other than by mouth if the person is unable to swallow. Several methods may be used:

- Nasogastric Tube (NG tube): a tube inserted through the nose and into the stomach.
- Gastrostomy tube (G-tube or PEG tube): a tube inserted into the stomach for the long term administration of food, fluids and medications.

Artificial hydration: provides fluids via a small tube inserted into a vein (venous catheter or IV). Terminal patients who wish to voluntarily stop eating and drinking (VSED) and simply receive comfort care, should also request to discontinue artificial hydration by IV, as hydration prolongs the dying process.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR): interventions that may include manual compressions to the chest, an electric charge to restart the heart, drug therapies, or a ventilator to assist in breathing. CPR can be life-saving, but the success rate for critically ill persons is extremely low. Read more about CPR in Appendix 3.

Cerebrovascular accident: see Stroke

Chronic debilitating suffering of a permanent nature: ongoing distress arising from a medical condition for which there is no cure. Examples would be Parkinson's disease or severe diabetes.

Coma: a profound state of unconsciousness in which a person cannot be awakened by pain, light, sound or vigorous stimulation.

Comfort care: services that contribute to physical and mental ease and wellbeing, often provided for a dying person when further medical intervention has been judged inappropriate or is unwanted. See also Palliative care.

Dementia: a chronic or persistent disorder of a person's mental processes caused by brain disease or injury and marked by memory disorders, personality changes and impaired reasoning. Alzheimer's disease is the most common cause of dementia.

Do Not Resuscitate (DNR): If your breathing or heartbeat has stopped, the emergency procedure to attempt to restore these functions is called CPR. If you do not want CPR you must have a DNR Order in hand. If you are in hospital such an order may be on your chart but if you are anywhere else, the DNR Order or your Health Care Directive stating DNR directions must be shown to first responders to avoid being resuscitated. Read more about DNR in Appendix 4.

Heart failure: a condition in which the heart is unable to pump sufficiently to maintain blood flow to meet the body's needs; also known as congestive heart failure.

Hospice: from the word “hospitality,” the modern concept of hospice is a place and/or a service providing palliative care for terminally ill people in hospitals, long-term care homes or in their own home. Such care generally provides pain management and other comfort care but not medical interventions to prolong life.

Intensive care unit (ICU): a hospital unit with specialized staff providing constant monitoring and support for the care of those who are critically ill or injured. Also referred to as the critical care unit.

Life support or life-sustaining treatment: replaces or supports critical bodily functions such as breathing, cardiac function, nutrition and hydration. Such measures keep the person alive but do not cure the underlying problem. Life support may be used temporarily for a treatable condition.

Mechanical breathing: used to support or replace the function of the lungs. A ventilator or respirator forces air into the lungs via a tube inserted into the person’s nose or mouth and into the trachea. In certain conditions, the tube is inserted through a small hole at the front of the throat.

Medical Assistance in Dying (MAID): also known as physician assisted dying. An individual can request medical assistance in dying where a physician or nurse practitioner, at an individual’s request: (a) administers a substance that causes an individual’s death; or (b) prescribes a substance for an individual to self-administer to cause their own death.

Palliative care: therapies given in any setting to provide comfort and to alleviate pain and distressing symptoms in order to relieve suffering and improve the quality of living and dying for those faced with a life-threatening illness or medical condition.

Personal care: includes health care, nutrition, shelter, clothing, hygiene or safety. Includes both treatment and personal assistance services.

Personal support worker services: hired services providing assistance with or supervision of hygiene, washing, dressing, grooming, eating, drinking, elimination, ambulation, positioning or any other routine activity of daily living but does not include treatment.

Stroke, also called a cerebrovascular accident: a sudden disabling attack or loss of consciousness caused by an interruption in the flow of blood to the brain, especially through thrombosis (blood clot).

Terminal illness: a medical condition which has progressed to the point where death may be expected within weeks or months.

Treatment: any sort of procedure or action done for a health-related purpose, whether the treatment be therapeutic, preventative, palliative, diagnostic, cosmetic, etc.

Vegetative state: said of a person who is alive but comatose and without apparent brain activity or responsiveness. A person in a persistent vegetative state is completely unresponsive to psychological and physical stimuli, displays no sign of higher brain function and is being kept alive only by medical intervention.

APPENDIX 3. ABOUT CARDIOPULMONARY RESUSCITATION (CPR)

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) is a medical procedure used to restart someone's heartbeat and breathing when the heart and/or lungs stop working. CPR can be successful in emergency situations when the person is otherwise healthy. Imagine a young basketball player who collapses on the court, for example, and who is helped by CPR.

CPR is frequently performed on TV amid a flurry of people and machines; there are celebratory “high fives” all around when CPR is successful. This is a performance, which in real life is more fiction than fact. Only about 4-16% of CPR procedures done outside of hospital are successful.<sup>1</sup>

If someone suffers from severe illness, advanced old age or a terminal disease, the odds of a good outcome from CPR is extremely low while the odds of suffering are overwhelming. A frail person who has not been breathing even for three minutes will have brain damage. What's more, during CPR ribs may be fractured, lungs punctured or the person may slip into a vegetative state and live that way for months.

This is why it is so important to make your wishes about CPR known in advance to your health care proxy, your family, and your healthcare providers. CPR is an emergency procedure for which time is of the essence. If you wish to be resuscitated in the event of a cardiac incident, call 911 and first-line responders will automatically start that process when they arrive.

But remember that you have the right to refuse CPR. If you do not want to be resuscitated but need other help, 911 responders will do whatever else they can but must be shown a DNR Order or a Health Care Directive with explicit instructions refusing CPR when they arrive. Read more about this form in Appendix 4.

APPENDIX 4. DNR AND THE DNR ORDER

Do Not Resuscitate (DNR) means that you do not wish to undergo cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) or advanced cardiac life support if your heart stops beating or you stop breathing. It is a legal order, written either in hospital or on a legal form, to withhold CPR or advanced cardiac life support.

Your healthcare professional may complete a DNR Order at your request or you may specify the terms under which you would not want CPR performed in your Health Care Directive.

After the DNR order is properly completed and signed by your healthcare professional, paramedics who respond to a 911 call will respect the order shown to them and will not initiate CPR.

Without a DNR Order, Health Care Directive, or instructions from a proxy, first-line responders to a 911 call are bound by law to initiate resuscitation. Make sure your original DNR Order or Health Care Directive with DNR instructions is in a clearly visible location so that no misunderstandings occur under the pressures of an emergency.

Make copies of the completed DNR Order after it has been completed and signed by a health care professional, add copies to your Health Care Directive, medical records or give it to anyone concerned with your health care.

In the health care community, Allow Natural Death (AND) is a phrase that is quickly gaining favour as it focuses on what is being done, not what is being avoided. Do Not Resuscitate (DNR) sounds to some as if life-giving treatment is being withheld. A Do Not Resuscitate order does not affect any treatment other than that which would require intubation or CPR. People who have a DNR order can continue to get chemotherapy, antibiotics, dialysis, or any other appropriate treatment. In other words, DNR does not mean “do not treat.”

If you are in a hospital and unable to speak for yourself, your health care proxy should confirm your DNR wishes to the medical staff by bringing your Health Care Directive/Advance Care Directive to show that they are your authorized representative.

APPENDIX 5. FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q: Can someone else create a Health Care Directive on my behalf?

No. But if you are unable to write, your directive may be given orally. If someone else is writing on your behalf, his/her signature must be witnessed in your presence.

Q: What if I have a written Health Care Directive in which I refuse a certain treatment, and then change my mind when I am in hospital?

You can change your mind at any time. Any instructions you give orally will override previously written instructions provided you are competent when you express the new instructions.

Q: I am just not comfortable imagining all these medical conditions you describe. Why can't I simply say I don't want my dying to be prolonged?

You may certainly do so. Many people do. However, if you do not set down specific instructions, a general Health Care Directive is open to interpretation—and you may be treated in ways you would not want.

Q: What happens if I don't appoint a health proxy?

Under The Health Care Directives and Substitute Health Care Decision Makers Act (the Act), if you have not named a specific person, then your health care proxy is your nearest relative, determined from the following list:

1. Your spouse, or the person you live with and have a relationship of some permanence with;
2. An adult son or daughter;
3. A parent or legal custodian;
4. An adult brother or sister;
5. A grandparent;
6. An adult grandchild;
7. An uncle or aunt;
8. An adult nephew or niece;
9. If you have no relatives able or willing to act on your behalf, two members of the medical team treating you will make the appropriate decisions on your care which one member must confirm in writing.

Q: My son is named sole proxy in my directive. If he moves out of the country, can he delegate one of my two daughters to act instead?

No, your son cannot decide this for you. You would have to make out a new proxy form naming one of your daughters as your health care proxy. To prevent such a situation, name each of your two daughters as your second and third choice.

Appendix 5. Frequently Asked Questions... continued

Q: I have two sons and I want to give them equal rights to make decisions for me. Why should I not appoint them to act jointly?

If two people are appointed jointly and they disagree on your care the first person named on the proxy makes the decision.

Q: My brother and I are not on very good terms, but I have no other relatives, so he is my health care proxy. What happens if he goes against the wishes in my Health Care Directive and makes other decisions for me?

If your physician or anyone else who has a copy of your Health Care Directive sees that your wishes are not being followed, they can apply to the Court of Queen's Bench to have your brother ordered to comply with your directive, or to request that the Court appoint a new substitute decision maker.

Q: My husband has a serious heart condition. He has had several medical procedures and numerous hospital stays for complications. He has told me that if he has another heart attack he wants to be left alone and I am not to call 911. I don't want to take responsibility for this decision. What should I do?

To ensure that your husband is not resuscitated against his will, he should clearly state in his Health Care Directive that he refuses CPR. Your husband should keep the form where it is easily found in an emergency. In this way, the decision is his own and not your responsibility.
