HOLD THE LINE

As part of the creation of a new Official Plan, Ottawa City Council is debating whether to expand Ottawa’s urban boundary. An ever-wider city boundary leads to urban sprawl and all of the problems that entails – climate emissions, air pollution, gridlock, unaffordable transit, spiraling infrastructure costs and lost natural areas and farmland.

We, the undersigned, urge the mayor and councillors to ‘Hold the Line’ and reject any new urban boundary expansion as part of the new Official Plan. We want the city to focus future development on the existing urban area. In the process, we can build a city of compact, livable communities with access to jobs, transit, greenspace and urban food production. At the same time, we will preserve valuable greenspace outside of the boundary for needed local food production and natural corridors for people, plants and animals.
