

DOV 2021

HdS 2021

MARCH 5 - 8 2021

Vanessa Bastarache Acadie-Bathurst

Citoyenne de la planète, Bluenoser d'adoption, venant de Moncton, j'aime bien voyager et de passer du temps dans les parcs nationaux de notre pays! Travaillante saisonnière du Fort Beauséjour et l'hiver dans des associations francophone en milieux minoritaires le français et le féministe sont des causes qui me sont proche.

Emma Reeves Beauséjour

New Brunswick is an interesting and quaint part of Canada that has shaped much of who I am. Being in the capital of the province, I feel surrounded by a determined, innovative, and inspiring community. My passion for social development within my community and abroad led me to study interdisciplinary leadership which helped cultivate my interest in politics. My appreciation for the collaboration which is fostered in female and gender-diverse led environments piqued my interest to become a 2020 DOV Delegate. I wholly believe that when an intersectional gender lens and critique is applied to policy development, everyone benefits. I am excited for the upcoming opportunity to engage with other passionate delegates, learn from and with them, and to elevate their voices!

Heather Ibbetson Fredericton

Heather is currently living in the beautiful city of Fredericton, New Brunswick. She has a diverse range of experiences that she is excited to draw from as a delegate. Her academic journey has been dynamic. After completing an undergraduate nursing degree, Heather completed a Bachelor of Arts, majoring in political science. She is currently working on a Master of Arts virtually through Brock University. Her occupational experience is just as diverse as her education. Heather has worked in a wide array of positions, including healthcare, non-profit, and corporate sectors. Heather has also volunteered for various organizations, most notably for the Fredericton Trails Coalition and Waterlution. She enjoys learning from others' perspectives and solving tough challenges. She is excited to amalgamate these experiences into her time spent as a delegate. In her spare time, Heather enjoys being in the wilderness with her family and golden retriever. She especially enjoys hiking through mountains during the summer and through the snow-covered maritime forests in winter.

Chloe Dallon Fundy Royal

My name is Chloe Dallon and I am a recent Bachelor of Science graduate from the University of New Brunswick. I will be beginning my law degree in September! I am passionate about child welfare issues, poverty reduction and human rights from womb to tomb. I grew up in a tiny, oceanside village and am so excited to meet everyone, learn more about Canada's political system, and acquire skills and knowledge to help me advocate in my home riding.

Alden Spencer

Madawaska-Restigouche

My name is Alden Spencer, and I am 23 years old. I am a second-year law student at the University of New Brunswick, and I have an Honours Bachelor of Arts, major in Political Science, minor in History, and a certificate of criminology from Memorial University. I am passionate about access to justice, prisoners' rights, and criminal justice reform. I firmly believe every person deserves a fair trial in open court with equal access to resources, such as legal representation and expert testimony. I hope to be a criminal defence lawyer in Newfoundland and Labrador when I graduate.

In my downtime, I love to bake, read, dance, and spend time with my cat, Roe. Je suis aussi fièrement bilingue et je lutte pour l'égalité des langues au Canada. À bientôt!

Julianna Mutch

Miramichi-Grand Lake

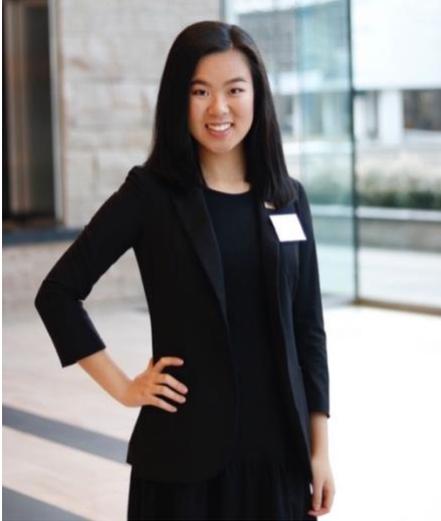

Julianna grew up in Moncton, New Brunswick where she was highly involved in the basketball community as a player, referee, and coach. She also took pride in being a student volunteer and leader all throughout grade school, most notably being on the executive of her high school's student council. In 2013, Julianna went on to study a Bachelor of Arts with a double major in political science and French at Acadia University (AU). Outside of academia, she was a student volunteer and leader and in 2014 was awarded Councillor of the Year for Acadia Students' Union. In 2015, she studied in France for the year. Upon graduating in 2017, she continued her studies at AU with a Bachelor of Education, which she graduated with in 2018 and became a certified K-12 French and social studies teacher in Nova Scotia. In 2018, she studied a Master of Public Service (MPS) at the University of Waterloo, where she took courses and had co-op positions that prepared her for a career in the public service and she was the president of the master's association. In 2020, she graduated with her MPS and became permanently employed with the Canada Revenue Agency in Ottawa as a Corporate Research Analyst. Since being in Ottawa, she has volunteered with a local homeless shelter as a game night leader and as a facilitator for their free non-credit university program. In her free time, she enjoys cooking and baking for her loved ones, travelling (pre-COVID-19 times), and getting outside.

Catherine Wang

Moncton-Riverview-Dieppe

Catherine Wang is a resident of the Moncton-Riverview-Dieppe riding. She is currently a student at McMaster University, completing her Bachelor of Health Sciences (Honours) and hoping to pursue a career in dentistry. As an active volunteer on and off-campus, Catherine is passionate about vocalizing issues such as homelessness and problematic substance use, as well as supporting marginalized populations. During her free time, Catherine enjoys practicing yoga, drawing, and experiencing different cuisines. She is looking forward to meeting like-minded young women at Daughters of the Vote. Connect with her on LinkedIn: <https://www.linkedin.com/in/catherinewang1025/>

Jen Thompson

New Brunswick Southwest

I work at New Brunswick Power Corporation, in Corporate Compliance. I have a Bachelor of Science (Biology), Bachelor of Science (Sport Psychology) and a Master of Science (Exercise Science).

Sarah Lunney

Saint John-Rothesay

My name is Sarah Lunney, I am a 23-year-old woman in my final year of my Bachelor of Arts majoring in Political Science at the University of New Brunswick. I grew up in Rothesay, New Brunswick and attended high school in Saint John's uptown core. Living in Rothesay while attending school in Saint John exposed me to the economic gaps between these two communities that fall under the same federal riding. This experience became the foundation of my interest in studying political science as I recognized that political decisions impact the everyday lives of citizens. During my time as a student, I have been able to gain experiencing working on research with professors and partnering with the largest food bank on a provincial summer work grant to conduct food insecurity research. I am now a volunteer and board member with the food bank, which allows me to interact weekly with some of the most vulnerable members of my community and better understand the issues they are facing. I have also worked as an assistant researcher for my professor where I have gained knowledge on human rights, industry, gender and politics. Saint-John Rothesay is a community with a unique set of issues that need to be addressed in order for all members to thrive economically, socially and culturally. I am excited to represent Saint John-Rothesay at the 2021 Daughters of the Vote to bring an intersectional feminist perspective to Parliament.

Maddie Carr

Tobique-Mactaquac

Maddie Carr is a third-year student at the University of Brunswick New pursuing a major in Interdisciplinary Leadership with a secondary major in environmental studies. As a widely involved member of her community, Maddie is passionate about a variety of topics such as environmental conservation and politics. She is constantly seeking new ways to educate herself and improve the world around her, through volunteering for various environmental non-profits in her community, working on campaigns to encourage citizens to vote, and participating in conferences like Daughters of the Vote.
