

DOV 2021

HdS 2021

MARCH 5 - 8 2021

Lauren Hill

Saskatoon West

Lauren Hill is a final-year student at McGill University as a Bachelor of Arts candidate, majoring in Political Science and History. Though Montreal has been her place of residence for the past two years, she is a proud Saskatchewanian, and considers Saskatoon home. She has strong experience in politics and government, working in legislative and advisory positions at the municipal, provincial, and federal levels. Speaker of Legislative Council and Board of Directors for the Students' Society of McGill University, Lauren has a strong passion for governance and parliamentary procedure. She is passionate about reproductive and sexual health advocacy, recently co-founding a non-profit organization seeking to combat stigma and to restructure methods of sexual education instruction in local school curriculum. In her spare time, Lauren specializes in graphic design, online media, marketing, and communications, working with various organizations. Lauren is also passionate about non-profits and youth advocacy, working with organizations such as Girl Guides of Canada and the Non-Profit Youth Leadership Network. For pastimes, Lauren enjoys spending time with her dogs, reading, and crafting. Following her undergraduate degree, Lauren hopes to pursue graduate studies in political science, history, or law.

Emily Lint Prince Albert

Emily Lints (she/her) is a student, Founder, and Executive Director. She studies at the University of Regina taking an Honours degree in English as well as certificates in both Public Relations and Non-Profit Leadership and Innovation. Emily is passionate about the non-profit sector and engaging youth. Because of this, she founded the Non-Profit Youth Leadership Network. The NPYLN provides virtual sessions such as networking and professional development to youth aged 16-29 across Canada. The newest NPYLN team is the Youth Engagement Advisors, a group that works directly with non-profit organizations to enhance their youth consultation and engagement as well as aid in the development of youth positions. As the Executive Secretary of Enactus Regina and Co-President of the U of R English Students Association, Emily also has a deep involvement in the campus community. Emily hopes to continue her work in the non-profit sector while pursuing an MA in English.

Christina McRorie

Saskatoon-University

Christina lives in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, with parents from the rural prairies and Southeast Asia. She is completing her undergraduate in International Studies with a minor in Economics at the University of Saskatchewan. Her interest lies in interdisciplinary approaches to welfare and sustainable development, ensuring humanity meets social needs while staying within ecological boundaries. In her community, Christina is a member of the Saskatoon Environmental Advisory Committee, as well as a volunteer with Saskatoon Open Door Society, a non-profit providing resources to newcomers to Canada. She works as a swim instructor and research assistant, as well as part of a team developing a sustainable transit initiative in Saskatoon. She strongly believes in the principles of leading with love and choosing people over profit. Her core values include interpersonal and community relationships, bottom-up activism and top-down action, and maintaining optimism that a better world is possible. Beyond all these, she can be found reading poetry and literature, practicing yoga, or eating a good dark chocolate.

Isabella Grajczyk

Moose Jaw-Lake Centre-Lanigan

Isabella Grajczyk is a fourth-year student who is passionate and engaged with global issues. She is studying International Affairs (honours) and Economics at the University of Regina in addition to pursuing a Global Studies Certificate from the University of Saskatchewan. Given her areas of study, she is passionate about finding opportunities to enhance her skills and represent Canada on the world stage. Last February, she was selected to participate in a Trade and Development Mission to Lima, Peru with Global Vision, where she was able to meet prominent business leaders and diplomats. She was also accepted to attend the Commission on the Status of Women with UNA-Canada in March; however, the outbreak of COVID-19 barred her actual attendance. This fall, she also was fortunate enough to be selected for Plan Canada's Girls Belong Here program where she was able to work with many prominent individuals from the Permanent Mission of Canada to the UN in New York, most notably Ambassador Louis Blais. Through this experience, she was able to discuss the position of women in the workforce and the current setback for women and girls around the world as a result of the pandemic. While her interests remain quite global, she still finds time to be active within her own community and country. She has organized an International Women's Day Brunch that brought together women from her community to celebrate and support one another. In addition, she is the president and founder of a new initiative called Sask Girls United that aims to educate and empower girls ages 8-12 across Saskatchewan. Isabella is a motivated and ambitious person who strives to help everyone she can, both locally and globally. She has recently been selected to participate in a virtual APEC summit this November and is looking forward to continuing her work and studies internationally upon graduation.

Hannah Tait

Regina-Lewvan

Hannah was born in Regina, Saskatchewan. She attended her senior high school years in New South Wales, Australia. Her international move initiated her interest in understanding how the world operates, and how it can be improved. She is multi-passionate, and dynamic life-long learner who enjoys working on a variety of issues. She is especially passionate about innovative and ethical technology management, accessible mental health and addictions resources, strategic planning and a cooperative political environment. Hannah is a current student at the University of Regina studying International Business and Political Science. She has undergone rigorous business case training in preparation for competing in the largest case competition in western Canada, JDC West, for the past three years. Over 2020, Hannah has represented her community at Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation's Voices of the Future summit, the National Ambassador Youth Caucus, on an International Trade mission to Peru, and at the Digital Citizen Ambassador Summit. She has held roles in retail and hospitality positions for over six years. She has had great work experiences with the SaskPower for two summers, and most recently she finished a work term at the Ministry of Central Services in the Policy, Planning and Performance branch. Hannah contributes to her community in many ways. She serves as the chair of the University of Regina Students Union Human Resource Committee. She fundraised and volunteered for Hope's Home over the past three years. She frequently volunteers at local events. Hannah is the Academic Coordinator for the Hill Business Students Society.

Kaitlyn Sauser

Saskatoon–Grasswood

My name is Kaitlyn Sauser and I am a 2nd Year university student, studying a double degree in Agribusiness and Commerce at the University of Saskatchewan. I grew up in a small town called Churchbridge, Saskatchewan my whole life, but now I live in Saskatoon for school. I have many interests including music, agriculture, policy, law, sports, and politics. I developed an interest in politics around the age of 16, and now I am heavily involved with the Sask Party of Saskatchewan and Conservative Party of Canada. I also hold a position on the student council for the Agriculture and Bioresources college as communications director. I enjoy being an advocate for all people who want to have their voice heard. Although I wish I could meet all other delegates in person, I am very honoured to have been selected for DOV and can't wait to meet everyone through my computer screen!

Katherine Meagher

Cypress Hills–Grasslands

Katherine Meagher is from a small agricultural community in southwestern Saskatchewan. During high school, she had the opportunity to attend Forum for Young Canadians in Ottawa and the Global Youth Institute in Des Moines, Iowa. These two experiences sparked her interest in politics and food security. Katherine is in her second year at Dalhousie University, majoring in International Food Business. At school, she is involved in the student leadership program, International Food Business Club, and student representative council. Her interests include domestic food security, public engagement in agriculture, and women's rights. Katherine is delighted to take part in DOV 2021 and is grateful for the opportunity she has been given.

Boey Leung

Regina-Wascana

I am currently studying at the University of Regina as an Accounting student. Since I grew up in another country, I gained interest in learning about the Canadian political system. I also like volunteering and contributing to my community. Outside of school, I enjoy travelling and going on adventures with my German Shepherd puppy.
