On October 30th, the New Hampshire Firearms Coalition (NHFC) a domestic nonprofit corporation, 501\(c\)\(4\), had a banner and multiple posters professionally printed with the intention of advocating for the defeat of House Bill 687 and the Democratic legislators who support it. There was no disclaimer on the banner nor posters indicating who paid for them or that they came from the NHFC.

Based on this, it is the position of the New Hampshire Democratic Party that the NHFC violated the political advertising RSA, chapter 664:14 section II, which says “political advertising to promote the success or defeat of a measure by a business organization, labor union, or other enterprise or organization shall be signed. The name of the enterprise or organization shall be indicated and the chairman or treasurer of the enterprise or organization shall sign his name and address.”

It is clear that the New Hampshire Firearms Coalition was using political advertising in the form of posters and banners to advocate for the defeat of House Bill 687:

- NHFC was responsible for the creation of the banner and posters: According to the group’s Facebook page, “NHFC had a poster made along with printed handouts of the picture below.” NHFC Facebook Page, [posted 10/30/2019].
- The banner and posters were created to advocate against House Bill 687: Kurt Beswick, vice president of the NHFC, told the Concord Monitor that the posters and banner were to show “why all pro-firearms groups are so anti any of these confiscation bills.” Concord Monitor, [10/30/2019].
- The group expended organizational funds on the banner and posters: The posters were “professionally printed” by the NHFC. Ethan Dewitt, [@edewittNH, 10/30/2019].
- The banner and posters contained no political disclaimer.
