Race Matters Institute Webinar Series

Monthly, November 2018 - February 2019 | 1:00 - 2:30 p.m. EST

Ending homelessness is only possible if we, as funders and leaders in our communities, commit to understanding and confronting the racial inequities that exist and the systems in place that perpetuate racism within housing and homelessness.

To equip philanthropy with tools and strategies to address and promote racial equity both internally and externally, Funders Together is partnering with the Race Matters Institute for a webinar series that will cover key concepts, how to conduct a racial equity impact analysis, and ways to advance racial equity in your organization. The series will also help funders learn about various tools for applying a racial equity lens to grantmaking strategies in order to prevent and end homelessness for everyone.

This is a four-part series with a webinar taking place each month: November 1, 2018 | December 10, 2018 | January 24, 2019 | February 28, 2019

Participation fees are $120 for dues-paying (Full) Funders Together members, and $160 for non dues-paying (Basic) Funders Together members and non-members.

Please note: This series will not be available for viewing after the live webinar date. If you are interested in this series or planning to join the community of practice, Foundations for Racial Equity, please register and plan to attend each part of the series on the dates indicated.

If you have questions about this series or our other racial equity focused programming, please reach out to Stephanie Chan, Director of Membership and Programs.

Community of Practice: Foundations for Racial Equity

January 2019 - December 2020

Foundations for Racial Equity, our newest two-year community of practice, is focused on changing systems to create a more equitable world and end homelessness. From January 2019 to December 2020, the community will convene funders working at national and local levels to build relationships with peers, learn together about systemic racism in housing and homelessness, and lead the field in equitable solutions to end homelessness.

Participants will meet twice a year in-person and convening virtually every month for training and peer coaching. The goals for the community are to understand how systemic racism in housing and homelessness continue to affect systems today and articulate a call to action for other funders on how to reduce racial inequities and the community will help direct the path and activities to reach those goals.

If you are interested in participating, you can register here. For more information about the community of practice, join our informational webinar today, October 19th at 1 p.m. EST or contact Stephanie Chan, Director of Membership and Programs.
