

Rielly Karsh
for
Clinton Town Council

Rielly Karsh is Councilwoman for the Town of Clinton, where she is the founding Chair of the Clinton's Economic Development Committee. She is also a member of the NJ Executive Committee of the Hunterdon County Democratic Committee, and as Chair of the Hunterdon County Democratic Women's Caucus. She has been recognized throughout the region as a results-focused leader who is passionate about community, inclusion, and service

She is Founder and CEO of Moms Running—a socially conscious consultancy with a mission to redefine motherhood in politics. Through a combination of modern self-help techniques, political acumen, and the lens of motherhood; Moms Running is lifting up moms around the globe via in-person workshops, political moms networking, and one on one consulting. Rielly is dedicated to increasing the engagement of women and moms at every level of the political landscape. She is a frequent speaker on topics ranging from women's rights to issues facing working families.

It's not all politics for this mother of two, once a Trustee for the Board of the Red Mill Museum Village, Rielly has deep ties to serving in the Town of Clinton. As the former Director of Development for the River Town Film Festival, Rielly and her team worked to support emerging, visionary filmmakers with fresh voices to embrace the theme of community. In addition to her fundraising experience, Rielly is a former corporate finance attorney with broad experience across finance, real estate, and securities law.

Rielly is a member of the New York State Bar and received her JD from Fordham University School of Law, and a BA in Psychology from the University of Arizona. Previously, she was named Empire State Counsel by the New York State Bar Association and was the founding Pro Bono Chair for the Women's Leadership Initiative at Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft LLP.
