Enormous Power of Precedent

Boston Post—The day is indeed coming, if it has not already arrived, when most of our Constitution will be in the hands of the judiciary, for example, the Bill which now stands before the Senate. There is no fixed limit to the interpretation of law that will not be reached, and it will be reached when judicial power is in the hands of the judiciary. The "Beautiful Lake" Doctrine

The "Beautiful Lake" Doctrine, by which the courts have the power to decide what constitutes a lake or not, is a beautiful example of judicial power. The Court has the power to decide what is a lake, and it will use that power to decide what is not a lake. In all cases where judicial power is in the hands of the judiciary, the courts will decide what is a lake, and it will be in the hands of the judiciary. The judiciary will be the ultimate authority in the matter. The Redwoods Will Go Next

Alaska Journal—If the proposed measure to erect a national park in the Redwood Forests is passed, the state of Nevada will be next. If it is not, the Redwoods will go next, and the state of Nevada will be next. A fellow who white or black has the right to do as he pleases, and if the state of Nevada is next, the Redwoods will go next, and the state of Nevada will be next.

Almost a Crime

Washoe Appeal—It is not one who has read the history of the world who will fail to realize the power of the courts to overturn the laws of Congress. Our national parks are a monument, a monument to the power of the courts to overturn the laws of Congress. It is an almost a crime, it is a crime in itself, to read the history of the world and fail to realize the power of the courts to overturn the laws of Congress.

An Inevitable Destruction

Erie Times Journal—The courts have the power to destroy the national parks. The courts can destroy the national parks, and the courts will destroy the national parks, unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the courts from destroying the national parks. The courts can destroy the national parks, and the courts will destroy the national parks, unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the courts from destroying the national parks.

A Solid Scheme

Outdoor World and Economic—The national parks are a solid scheme, and they will stand the test of time. The national parks are a solid scheme, and they will stand the test of time, and the courts will not be able to destroy them.

The President to the Rescue

New York Times—The President is ready to act. He is prepared to act, and he will act. The President is ready to act, and he will act, and the courts will not be able to destroy the national parks.

Remarkable Protest of the Press

National Register—The press has shown a remarkable protest of the national parks. The press has shown a remarkable protest of the national parks, and it is in the interest of the press to show a remarkable protest of the national parks.

A Priceless Valley

Philadelphia Patriot—Why should the people of the United States, the inhabitants of the state of California, and the inhabitants of the state of Nevada, and the people of the United States, the inhabitants of the state of California, and the inhabitants of the state of Nevada, be required to support a project that is not in the interest of the people of the United States, the inhabitants of the state of California, and the inhabitants of the state of Nevada?

Wake Up and Protest

Southeastern-American—Let everybody east of the United States wake up and protest. If the national parks are destroyed, the people of the United States will lose a valuable asset.

A National Scandal

The New York Times—The Bill to destroy the national parks is a scandal of the first magnitude. The national parks are a national scandal, and the courts will be unable to destroy them. The national parks are a national scandal, and the courts will be unable to destroy them.

A Crisis

Boston Post—The national parks are in danger. The national parks are in danger, and unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the destruction of the national parks, the courts will destroy the national parks. The national parks are in danger. The national parks are in danger, and unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the destruction of the national parks, the courts will destroy the national parks.

An Anti-Conservation Raid

Boston Transcript—If this movement continues, the national parks will be destroyed. The national parks will be destroyed, unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the destruction of the national parks. The national parks will be destroyed. The national parks will be destroyed, unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the destruction of the national parks.

Cannons Justify the Spoliation

New York Times—The national parks are in danger. The national parks are in danger, and unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the destruction of the national parks, the courts will destroy the national parks. The national parks are in danger. The national parks are in danger, and unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the destruction of the national parks, the courts will destroy the national parks.

Senators Should Consider Higher Aspects

Boston Post—The national parks are in danger. The national parks are in danger, and unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the destruction of the national parks, the courts will destroy the national parks. The national parks are in danger. The national parks are in danger, and unless Congress passes a bill to prevent the destruction of the national parks, the courts will destroy the national parks.

Nation vs. City

Tennessee Republican—The national parks are in the interest of the nation, and they are not in the interest of the cities. The national parks are in the interest of the nation, and they are not in the interest of the cities.

An Economic Finery

The New York Times—The national parks are in the interest of the nation, and they are not in the interest of the cities. The national parks are in the interest of the nation, and they are not in the interest of the cities.

A Treasurer on National Rights

Boston Journal—The national parks are in the interest of the nation, and they are not in the interest of the cities. The national parks are in the interest of the nation, and they are not in the interest of the cities.
COMMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES PRESS

Conservation Monarch

Christian Scientist Monitor—Bob Hope's tenaciousness in fighting to save the last of America's great unused natural water resources has been illustrated in the Hetch Hetchy Valley, located in the eastern Sierras in California, where a federal dam has been built by the United States Army Corps of Engineers. The dam is part of a large-scale water supply project to be completed by 1933, and it is estimated that the project will provide water for more than 200,000 people in the San Francisco Bay area. The project is expected to cost $140 million, and it is one of the largest water supply projects in the world.

Every Reserve in Danger

Minneapolis Journal—The offices of the Minnesota Woman's Christian Temperance Union were recently vandalized, reportedly by members of the local Prohibition Party. The incident is the latest in a series of attacks on the women's organization, which has been fighting to legalize divorce and abortion in the state. The Union has been particularly active in recent years, and it has been involved in several high-profile cases, including the trial of Mary Surratt, who was convicted of conspiracy to assassinate President Abraham Lincoln.

Electric Light the Object

Bulletin—Electric light demands made on the state of California are increasing, and the state is facing a serious energy crisis. The state's population is growing rapidly, and the demand for electricity is expected to increase by 50% in the next decade. The state is currently relying on coal and natural gas to meet its energy needs, but these sources are becoming increasingly expensive and unreliable. The state is considering the development of new energy sources, such as wind and solar power, but these technologies are still in the early stages of development.

Letting the Cat Out of the Bag

Boston Globe—The state of Georgia is facing a serious drought, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to conserve water. The state has declared a drought emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on water usage, including bans on outdoor watering and restrictions on industrial water usage. The state is also encouraging residents to conserve water by limiting their usage to essential needs such as drinking and cooking.

The New Economy

Philadelphia Bulletin—The state of Pennsylvania is facing a serious economic crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the economy. The state has declared a financial emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on public spending, including cuts to education, health care, and transportation. The state is also encouraging businesses to conserve resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as production and distribution.

The Presidency

New York Times—The state of New York is facing a serious political crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the political situation. The state has declared a political emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on political activity, including bans on campaign rallies and restrictions on political speech. The state is also encouraging citizens to conserve their political resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as voting and participation in the democratic process.

What Is The Will of the People?

Los Angeles Times—The state of California is facing a serious political crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the political situation. The state has declared a political emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on political activity, including bans on campaign rallies and restrictions on political speech. The state is also encouraging citizens to conserve their political resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as voting and participation in the democratic process.

The Peacemaker

Chicago Tribune—The state of Illinois is facing a serious economic crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the economy. The state has declared a financial emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on public spending, including cuts to education, health care, and transportation. The state is also encouraging businesses to conserve resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as production and distribution.

Declaring war on the war

New York Times—The state of New York is facing a serious political crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the political situation. The state has declared a political emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on political activity, including bans on campaign rallies and restrictions on political speech. The state is also encouraging citizens to conserve their political resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as voting and participation in the democratic process.

TheITTLE Menace

Boston Globe—The state of Massachusetts is facing a serious economic crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the economy. The state has declared a financial emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on public spending, including cuts to education, health care, and transportation. The state is also encouraging businesses to conserve resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as production and distribution.

The Mismeasurecy

Philadelphia Bulletin—The state of Pennsylvania is facing a serious economic crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the economy. The state has declared a financial emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on public spending, including cuts to education, health care, and transportation. The state is also encouraging businesses to conserve resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as production and distribution.

The False Safety

Brooklyn Daily Eagle—The state of New York is facing a serious political crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the political situation. The state has declared a political emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on political activity, including bans on campaign rallies and restrictions on political speech. The state is also encouraging citizens to conserve their political resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as voting and participation in the democratic process.

Inviolable Legislation

Philadelphia Bulletin—The state of Pennsylvania is facing a serious economic crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the economy. The state has declared a financial emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on public spending, including cuts to education, health care, and transportation. The state is also encouraging businesses to conserve resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as production and distribution.

The New Economy

Philadelphia Bulletin—The state of Pennsylvania is facing a serious economic crisis, and the state government is implementing emergency measures to stabilize the economy. The state has declared a financial emergency, and it has imposed restrictions on public spending, including cuts to education, health care, and transportation. The state is also encouraging businesses to conserve resources by limiting their usage to essential needs such as production and distribution.
The mission of Restore Hetch Hetchy is to return the Hetch Hetchy Valley in Yosemite National Park to its natural splendor while continuing to provide the water and power needs of all communities that depend on the Tuolumne River.

Hetch-Hetchy Not Needed by the City of San Francisco

"The Board of [United States Army Engineers] is of the opinion that there are several sources of water supply that could be developed to fulfill the city's water and power needs for San Francisco and adjacent communities to supplement the Tuolumne River. One of these would be..."

Shall the Nation Hand Over to San Francisco a Franchise Worth $45,000,000?

The beauty of the Valley will be destroyed.

"It is an act of vandalism..." - Brooklyn (N.Y.) Standard Union (Editorial)

A Backward Step in Conservation

The Boston Transcript calls it the "first breach..." and notes that "Water rights..." and "creates a vacuum..." which can be filled.

Hetch-Hetchy a Pleasure-Ground of the People—Develop It, Don't Destroy

Hundreds of visitors to the Valley pronounce it a gem of rare beauty. Among these are John Muir, Emil Zolna, E. H. Sviland, George Bird Evans,Edward S. Morse, H. O. M. Lockwood, and Mrs. Edward S. Morse. They are imbued with the belief that there are..."