HAVE YOUR SAY #1 - NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF AUSTRALIA

Have you used the resources of the National Archives of Australia for your historical research? The 'Tune Review' is your opportunity to comment on the future of the NAA, its role in the digital age and the benefits and services that it provides.

Led by former Department of Finance Secretary Mr David Tune, this 'Functional and Efficiency Review' has broad terms of reference and welcomes suggestions for improvement of the NAA's services.

The closing date for written submissions has been extended to 30 June 2019. Visit the Tune Review web page for more information.

HAVE YOUR SAY #2 - BUSHFIRE EDUCATION, SCIENCE AND REFLECTION CENTRE

The Victorian government's Bushfire Advisory Group has recommended the creation of a program or space that would provide bushfire education and raise awareness of the recent and historical bushfires that have impacted Victoria.

The government now seeks community views on topics such as the need for a bushfire centre, the best way to realise the concept, possible locations if a permanent site were to be established and what visitors would expect to see and learn during a visit.

Click HERE to have your say on these matters via an online survey that takes a few minutes to complete. (Longer submissions can be uploaded via the same website.) The consultation period runs to Thursday 15 August 2019.

Please share this information with your friends and networks.
