FAITH & STEWARDSHIP IN THE CABIN JOHN CREEK WATERSHED

FREE WORKSHOP Fall 2018

There are over 60 places of worship in and around the Cabin John Creek watershed, many located along the busy Seven Locks Road commuter corridor. These institutions have high visibility and provide strong leadership to a wide range of congregants. Many of these faith communities already have active programs promoting environmental stewardship, and others may be interested in developing one.

In partnership with Interfaith Partners for the Chesapeake, Friends of Cabin John Creek will be offering a workshop to help congregations explore the concept of a green ministry, start a program, or expand on-going efforts. This workshop will give people of all faiths the opportunity to learn about the different ways their faith tradition encourages them to be good environmental stewards. We will encourage worship institutions to install stormwater management practices on their property, and recommend that their community members reduce polluted stormwater runoff at their homes.
