

Peter Lattman is the managing director of media at Emerson Collective, a social change organization. He oversees Emerson's investments and grants in media and journalism, which include The Atlantic, where he is vice chairman. He serves on the boards of Anonymous Content and the American Journalism Project. Prior to joining Emerson, Peter worked as a journalist at The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal. Born in New York City, he grew up in Roslyn, on Long Island. He lives on the Upper West Side of Manhattan with his wife, Isabel Gillies and their three children.