Dr. Shahar Sadeh serves as JCRC-NY’s Faculty Engagement Program Director since 2014, working with faculty and administrators all across NYC to enhance nuance discussions about Israel and the Israeli Palestinian conflict on college campuses. She curated and led academic events, workshops as well as study tours to Israel and the Palestinian Territories. Shahar is also a scholar-practitioner in the fields of Environmental Diplomacy, Peacemaking and Peacebuilding in the Middle East. She received her degrees from Tel Aviv University, was a Visiting Scholar and later an adjunct Professor at Columbia University. In Israel, Shahar co-founded the “Van Leer Jerusalem Forum on Environment and Regional Sustainability,” and worked for many years with civil society groups dealing with conflict resolution and environmentalism.
