Dr. Robert Harrison

Demanding a Better Future

As a member of the Federal Policy Committee, I want to bring my experience as a Brit living and working overseas to the party to strengthen our international work. I'm passionate about how science and technology can be used to improve everyday life and create wealth to support our public services. My current interests include the development of artificial intelligence and machine learning and I've been looking not only at the science behind these technologies, but also the implications for society.
