Against the politics of division, our message of hope & optimism is needed now more than ever.
Britain is stronger, safer and better off in Europe

Being in Europe means a stronger Britain and a brighter future:

- JOBS NOW AND FOR THE FUTURE – over 3 million UK jobs are linked to our exports with Europe (Source: HM Treasury), and being in Europe means more opportunities available now and for future generations.

- WORKERS’ RIGHTS PROTECTED – the EU protects the rights of UK workers: paid maternity leave, guaranteed holiday leave, equal pay and anti-discrimination measures all come directly from European law. If we leave Europe they could be at risk.

- TACKLING CLIMATE CHANGE – Britain needs to be at the forefront in the fight against climate change. And that means Britain remaining part of the EU, so we can continue to work closely with our neighbours to cut emissions and protect our natural environment.

LIBERAL LEAVE
Making the case for a fair, free and equal Britain outside the EU

Paul Keetch, former MP for Hereford, and Liberal Democrat Shadow Defence Secretary during the invasion of Iraq:
“Liberal Democrats are internationalists to our core – we believe in universal human rights and that nations can achieve more together than they can alone. But that should not be the same as unquestioning support for the illiberal and undemocratic institutions of the European Union. Decisions affecting people’s lives should be made as closely as possible to individuals and communities – not in secretive meetings of the EU’s Council of Ministers. I don’t support Leave in spite of being a liberal. I support Leave because I am a liberal.”

Anne Cremin, student in Oxford:
“I’m an internationalist and believe we should do far more to help people in the developing world break out of poverty. That means trading with them. But unfair EU trade policies make it very difficult for developing nations to trade with us, due to tariff escalation and food export preferences. If an African country wants to export chocolate to the UK, it must pay a 30% import tariff, sometimes up to 60%. This means that EU products, while no better, are significantly cheaper. If we want to help developing countries break out of poverty, it’s time for us to break free of the European Union.”

Charles Anglin, former Parliamentary Candidate for Vauxhall:
“Another Europe is possible. It’s just not on offer. As Liberal Democrats, we believe in a fair, free and open Europe – but those of us in Liberal Leave realise the European Union has no intention of being liberal or democratic. By voting to leave, the UK would be able to better engage with the world on trade and immigration, and work to build a Europe that was open and accountable to its citizens.”

Luis Lopez, student in London:
“As someone who came to Britain from Colombia, I know it’s getting harder and harder for people from outside the EU to move to the UK. Immigration should be based on the values you hold – not the passport you hold. The European Union is far too insular and has failed time and again to stand up for LGBT rights or the rights of refugees.”

Charles Shaw, a Liberal Democrat Councillor in Lincolnshire:
“The best way to secure a fair, free and open society, in which no-one is enslaved by poverty, ignorance and conformity is to have a world where governments are answerable to their people and free to shape their own destiny. The EU, as it has developed, now threatens this, and plays into the hands of big banks, multi-national corporations and those who would impose uniformity against diversity.”

F3 Federal Policy Committee Report

Q1 Submitted by Steve Bolter

At the Autumn 2015 Conference, we voted not to support the replacement of the Trident nuclear weapon delivery system, but deferred related decisions on nuclear weapons, by commissioning a Policy Working Group.

What is the composition of the Working Party and how much progress has been made? Labour, the Greens and the SNP are making political capital out of their opposition to Trident renewal. Why are we not doing the same?

Q2 Submitted by Alisdair McGregor

Can the Federal Policy Committee update conference on the progress of the protecting children from online pornography motion which was referred back to it at the 2013 autumn conference?

F4 Liberal Democrat Economic Policy

7. The decarbonisation of the economy, including the promotion of the UK’s world-leading green industries, such as offshore wind power, low-carbon vehicles and green finance, with continued financial and other support in home markets and help with exports.

8. The implementation of the EU Action Plan for the Circular Economy to reduce waste and encourage material reuse through ‘closed loop’ manufacturing, creating new sustainable jobs and reducing the use of natural resources.

Background briefing

Saturday 12th March

F5 Speech by Baroness Burt, Spokesperson for Business, Innovation and Skills

Chair: Jenni Lang
Aide: Pauline Pearce
Hall Aide: Cllr Paul Tilsley

F6 Fracking

Amendment One

14 party members
Mover: Sir Edward Davey
Summation: Ewan Hoyle

1 In line 16, after ‘fracking’ insert ‘both decisions reversing the Coalition’s more cautious and democratic approach to shale gas exploration, that implemented our existing party policy’s evidence-based approach’.

4 Delete lines 17–40 and insert:

Conferences notes:

i) That most of the gas consumed in Britain is for heating and cooking – more than twice the quantity used for generating electricity; and that renewable heat systems to replace Britain’s 24 million gas boiler and central heating systems are still relatively expensive, with analysis suggesting their large scale deployment is unlikely to occur until the 2030s, especially in densely-populated cities.

ii) The urgency of replacing the far more climate-damaging coal from the UK’s power generation mix and that gas has a crucial role to play in this, at least in the next 20 years, alongside massive expansion of renewable electricity and demand-side measures; and therefore also condemns the Conservative Government’s irrational and irresponsible decision to end the Coalition’s programme for Carbon Capture and Storage technology, which has the potential not only to reduce dramatically carbon emissions from gas power stations but is also essential for decarbonising some industrial sectors.

iii) Shale gas produced in the UK would have a lower carbon footprint than much of the gas currently imported into the UK, especially Liquified Natural Gas; and that the UK is projected to increase significantly its imports of such higher carbon footprint gas, largely due to declining gas production in the North Sea.

Conference therefore believes there is both an environmental case and an energy security case for exploring the potential of shale gas in the UK, subject both to an independent review before proceeding to any future large-scale commercial production and to the stringent regulatory regime brought in under the Coalition Government, which the Royal Society and other independent experts believe will ensure drilling and fracking is carried out safely and responsibly.

Conference therefore calls on the British Government to:

1. Ensure the current exploratory stage for shale gas in the UK is subject to the strictest regulations and oversight, with the urgent restoration of local democratic accountability for planning decisions over shale gas sites, and that this exploratory stage ends no later than 2019.

2. Establish an independent review of all aspects of the evidence of the role shale gas can play, Satuday 12th March

alongside massive investment in renewable energy and energy efficiency, to contribute towards the UK’s heating, cooking and electricity generation needs in the next 20 years, as part of the UK’s overarching need to decarbonise by 2050 and to meet our obligations under the Climate Change Act and international agreements, with this review commencing after the current exploratory stage is completed and reporting to Parliament no later than 2020.

3. Only proceed with any large-scale commercial production of shale gas in the 2020s if:

a) The independent review proves that the use of UK produced shale gas would make a positive contribution to Britain’s efforts to tackle climate change between 2020 and 2050.
b) The independent review proves that the UK’s shale gas reserves can be exploited in a manner that is environmentally safe and safe for health and local communities.
c) The independent review proves that the alternative gas supplies that Britain would be forced to use would be more environmentally damaging and riskier in terms of security of supply.
d) A programme to develop and deploy Carbon Capture and Storage technology in the UK is restarted at the earliest possible opportunity.

Background briefing

This motion significantly develops policy on fracking in England by calling for an outright ban. Existing policy, which allowed for fracking subject to a number of conditions on environmental protection and community benefit, is set out in the General Election Manifesto, Stronger Economy. Fairer Society. Opportunity for Everyone (2015), and policy paper 109, Green Growth and Green Jobs (2013), as amended by conference.

The Federal Conference Committee has accepted the following drafting amendment to the motion:

1. After e) (line 53), insert:

Amendment One

Liberal Youth
Mover: Lee Dargue

1. After vi) (line 24), insert:

4. After D. (line 37), insert:

5. E. The safer-to-use cannabis provided through a regulated market, along with educational programmes and effective signposting, can help support teenagers to reduce or stop usage of cannabis, thus lowering the risk of memory damage in adulthood.

11. Casual vacancies occurring shall be filled by recounting the original ballot papers in the election, passing over any preferences for any candidate causing a vacancy. If necessary, further counts shall be conducted using the principles set out in regulation 10 to ensure that all candidates originally elected so remain and that the Specified Proportions of men and women are maintained.

Background briefing

Emergency motions ballot

There will be a single ballot to select one of the following items to be taken at F19 at 09.00 on Sunday 13th March. Ballot papers should be returned to the ballot box in the auditorium before 12.40 on Saturday 12th March.

Academic Freedom and Lobbying

Association of Liberal Democrat Engineers and Scientists

1 Conference is concerned by the new clause announced by the Cabinet Office in February banning organisations in receipt of government grants from using those funds to engage in lobbying activities. This is defined as activities which could influence government, Parliament, political parties, or legislative or regulatory action.

5 Conference notes that:

6 i) Receipt of research funds depends on researchers being able to demonstrate impact: a requirement which is at odds with the ban.

8 ii) The government is yet to introduce proper transparency measures to disclose lobbying activity, with in-house corporate lobbyists exempted from having to register.

10 iii) While there is provision for ministers to make individual exceptions, the clause creates an unnecessary bureaucratic hurdle which could hinder engagement between government and subject experts.

13 iv) In recent years, media controls on Canadian federal scientists stifled public discussion of several important environmental discoveries and led to international criticism; these measures are now being reversed by the Liberal government.

16 Conference believes that:

17 a) Publicly funded researchers are an invaluable resource of expertise.

20 b) Restricting their ability to contribute to the design and evaluation of policy would damage the liberal, democratic principle of ensuring policy is informed by reliable evidence and increase the likelihood of influence by populist pressure groups or corporate interests.

23 Conference therefore calls on the government to:

24 1. Delay implementation of any new restrictions until there has been time for proper Parliamentary scrutiny.

26 2. Ensure that researchers are not prevented in any way from contributing appropriately to policymaking procedures.

Party Funding Reform

12 party members

1 Conference notes:

2 I. Widespread, apparent breaches of constituency spending limits by Conservative candidates at the 2015 election, as reported in the Daily Mirror and other media.

4 II. Attempts by the Conservative Government to reform party finance rules for Labour and the trade unions, through their Trade Union Bill, with no balancing provision to cap individual donations by corporations and millionaires.
Emergency motions ballot

III. The successful Liberal Democrat initiative to set up a special House of Lords Select Committee on Trade Union Political Funds and Political Party Funding, and the unanimous cross-party view of that Committee that the Trade Union Bill will “have an impact on party funding and that it is very far from commanding...consensus” and “the political parties should live up to their manifesto commitments and make a renewed and urgent effort to seek a comprehensive agreement on party funding reform”; and the majority view of the Committee that “the question of whether to extend...opt-in [arrangements for political funds] to existing union members must only be considered as part of the cross-party discussions on party funding reform, and should not be dealt with in this Bill”.

IV. Public opinion polling by the Electoral Reform Society which suggests 75% of the public believe big money has too much influence on political parties.

V. Manifesto commitments by all parties to secure a comprehensive package of funding reform. Conference believes:

A. That the spirit of the existing law on constituency spending is being routinely breached
B. That the Conservative Government is making a concerted attempt to load the political dice in favour of their own party, through:
   a) Unilateral reforms to the trade union relationship with Labour.
   b) Ending the transition period to individual electoral registration early, in order to influence the boundary review.
   c) Pushing ahead with a boundary review based on incomplete electoral registers.
C. The public deserve a political system in which influence, access, honours, and seats in the House of Commons cannot be bought and sold.
D. The first two years of a Parliament are a vital window in which to achieve agreement on reform, before the starting gun for the next election sounds.

Conference calls on:

1. The Government to remove the party funding reform elements from the Trade Union Bill, and to reconvene cross-party talks.
2. All parties to agree a comprehensive package to go into a new Party Funding Bill, which should include:
   a) A cap on individual and corporate donations of no more than £10,000.
   b) Arrangements for trade unions to collect individual donations from their members, through a process of transparent “opt-in” consent.
   c) A reduction in overall national expenditure limits, as recommended by the Committee on Standards in Public Life.
   d) Controls on the amount of ‘national’ expenditure which can be allocated to any one constituency, as exist already for non-party campaigners.
   e) A redistribution of existing spend on political parties (e.g. through Freepost election address mailings) and on government advertising to introduce a fair, transparent and affordable system of public funding, which will ensure elections hang on millions of votes not millions of pounds.

Rough Sleepers

Barrow and Furness

Conference expresses its concern that the figures released by the Department of Communities and Local Government on 26 February show that the estimated number of people sleeping rough in England has increased by 30% in a year from 2744 in Autumn 2014 to 3569 in Autumn 2015.
Emergency motions ballot

Conference notes that of the people counted, 26% were in London; 67% were new (seen for the first time in 2014–15); 21% had been seen sleeping rough in the previous period; 14% were female; and 12% were under 26.

Conference believes that the numbers are likely to increase owing to the compulsory selling off of social housing, the lack of affordable housing and housing benefit cuts.

Conference opposes the use of Public Space Protection Orders to criminalise rough sleepers.

Conference calls for:

1. Accommodation for homeless people to be exempt from housing benefit cuts.
2. A statutory obligation for local authorities to offer shelter to homeless people.
3. Access to daytime services such as health care, washing facilities and facilities for the preparation of food for homeless people.

Towards a Stable and Peaceful Syria

11 party members

Conference condemns:

A. The sustained violent suppression of democratic opposition by the regime of President Assad in Syria and the resulting humanitarian catastrophe.
B. The reign of violent, sectarian terror that Daesh is spreading in parts of Syria.

Conference notes with concern:

i) The targeting of legitimate opposition groups in Syria by the Russian army.
ii) The severity of the humanitarian disasters that have been created by the conflict in Syria and the resulting instability across the region.
iii) The increasingly sectarian nature of the Syria conflict.
iv) The strain that the resulting refugee crises is putting on countries in the region, in particular the strain on Jordan, Lebanon and Turkey.
v) The lack of safe and legal routes for refugees which is leading to millions attempting dangerous crossings into Europe.
vi) The inability of countries across Europe to work towards a cohesive solution to the refugee crisis in our continent, and the resulting rise in anti-refugee rhetoric and violence.

Conference welcomes:

a) The Department for International Development’s continued commitment to providing humanitarian aid to all those who are suffering in the region.
b) The UK government’s hosting of the Syria Donor conference in February 2016 to encourage international partners to help fund support in Syria.

Conference believes that a strong EU with Britain at its core will be more effective in helping the Syrian people and in facing down the mischievous policies of certain states intervening in Syria for their own ends, than would be the case if Britain were to leave the EU.
Emergency motions ballot

Conference calls on the UK government to:

1. Play a leading role alongside the European Union in the Geneva III process and the current tentative cessation of hostilities, including ensuring the participation of women in peace talks.
2. Support the moderate opposition groups in Syria and where possible protect them from abuses by the Assad Regime and Russia.
3. Investigate the creation of humanitarian corridors and no fly zones over Syria.
4. Continue to work closely with our international allies to stop and reverse the spread of Daesh in Syria, Iraq and beyond.
5. Increase the number of refugees the UK takes both from the region and from within Europe, and work with the European Union to create safe and legal routes in order to end the dangerous passage of peoples across the Mediterranean.
6. Maintain its commitment to provide regular updates to the Parliament on the status of military operations in Syria.
