for Federal Campaigns

Who am I?

I've been Campaigns Officer for Exeter Uni Lib Dems and I'm currently Campaigns Officer for Devon & Cornwall Young Liberals. I helped revitalise my uni society: from having members that could be counted on one hand, into one which was able to send 18 activists out 54 times in 2019. I ran campaigns in the 2019 local and EU elections, winning a second Cllr on Exeter City Council and helping reach the threshold for a second MEP in the Southwest.

Why am I running?

A YL which is genuinely invested in the difficult task of evangelising the Liberal cause among students is worth fighting for. A YL which makes sure its members are connected with each other and well trained is worth fighting for. That's why I'm running.

YL can and should be the most important affiliated organisation in the party.

I believe that YL should and can be the most important affiliated organisation in the Party. The people we catch now, puzzling though their digital Freshers' are the future organisers, thinkers, campaigners and candidates of the Liberal movement. The grassroots starts with us. Our task is far too important for us to sit and talk to ourselves - so let's start rebuilding YL, and the party with it.

Working together to win

I will work to organise joint action days which bring different YL societies together & build bonds of friendship between them. I will also work to build a comprehensive list of every Young Liberal candidate in the country, using local knowledge to direct support towards those who want to win.

My Action Plan

1. Share best practice, including by creating a group chat of all campaigns officers
2. Offer high quality training with the most experienced campaigners in the party
3. Listen and learn from Uni societies on what our Freshers campaigns should be
