

Bio - Angela P. Dodson

Angela P. Dodson is the author of “Remember the Ladies: Celebrating Those Who Fought for Freedom at the Ballot Box” and writer of an introduction to a new edition of “Jailed for Freedom: A First-Person Account of the Militant Fight for Women’s Rights” by Doris Stevens, first published in 1920. Angela has served as senior editor for The New York Times and executive editor of Black Issues Book Review. She is CEO of Editorsoncall LLC. and most recently worked as a contributing editor for Diverse: Issues in Higher Education. She has written and edited newspaper and magazine articles and now edits and ghost writes books. Angela has worked on such books as “In Charge: Finding the Leader in You,” by Myles Munroe, “He Is Risen: Reflections on Easter and the Forty Days of Lent,” by Richard Abanes, and “Brainwashed: Challenging the Myth of Black Inferiority” by Tom Burrell. She is married to Michael I. Days, vice president for diversity of the Philadelphia Inquirer, former editor of the Daily News, and author of “Obama’s Legacy: What He Accomplished as President.” They live in Trenton, NJ, where they adopted and raised four sons. She is a journalism graduate of Marshall University and earned a master’s degree in journalism and public affairs at American University.