Priorities for this Parliament

Justin Trudeau called an early election - 2 years early - not because Parliament wasn't working, but because he said he couldn't get things done. He wanted a majority so he could avoid opposition scrutiny.

He instead got essentially the same seats as he had. He then waited five weeks to select a Cabinet, and Parliament won't return until Nov 22, nine weeks after the election.

His new Cabinet doesn't look strong enough to tackle Canada's post-pandemic issues - rising inflation, deficits and more debt. Senior Ministers are all big spenders. And the energy and environment portfolios are held by Ministers who see little value in Alberta's responsible and valuable natural resources. Hang on folks - we're in for another fractious Parliament. I pledge to keep Alberta's interests, and those of Calgary Centre residents, on the agenda.

What should be the top priorities for this Parliament (choose up to 3 top issues)

- Inflation, bringing down the rising cost of living
- Limiting the debt we are incurring that our kids will pay
- Preparing for pandemics (PPE, domestic vaccine production)
- Allowing travel and business to operate normally again
- Stronger government measures to reduce GHG emissions
- Bringing in government control over social media, internet
- Higher taxes on wealthy individuals and big companies
